Laundry Equipment Services, Inc., a West Virginia Corporation, is offering an opportunity for ownership of a brand new coin-operated laundromat to be built in Oakland. We have secured a location which our Demographic Survey shows to be very positive.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

We are developing equipment sizing, plans for machine layout, and marketing strategies. Financing (in some cases 100%) is available to qualified individuals with no pre-penalty payment and at attractive interest rates. This is a business with an attractive return on investment and a long-term income. It requires a minimum of owner management and is an excellent source of secondary income.

Individuals must have a good credit record and an ability to invest capital for leasehold improvements and start-up operating expenses.

SAVAGE RIVER? THE YOUGH? One might think this is a photo of kayakers taking on one of Garrett County's many natural and beautiful rivers, but in reality, they are shown as they set out on a manmade course, an amazing feat of engineering, that is now coursing around its specially designed loop atop Wisp mountain in McHenry. The Adventure Sports Center International (ASCI), headquartered at the mountain as well, deems the unique course its "centerpiece" among its many other outdoor adventure offerings. The course is a training ground for kayaking athletes of all skill levels, as the water can be lowered, raised. and "shaped" to fit each student's abilities. Matt Taylor, ASCI director of operations, is pictured among the boaters in this photograph as he takes a test run. Taylor said the rapids are finely designed, with manmade depressions that make for specific training features. He also noted that the course was made with safety in mind, as the sharp edges of rocks have been smoothed and eddy traps have been adjusted. "You can float down this entire course and not get injured," Taylor said during a tour ASCI provided in October. The course has been selected as the site for the 2007 Whitewater Slalom National Championships in August. See story and more photographs. Photo by Cindy Stacy.

Building Permits Down Slightly In Garrett County

Building permit numbers are down, but not drastically, the county's permits and inspection chief, Jim Torrington, reported to the Garrett County commissioners this week. But the total builder declared value and square footage have increased, he added.

Between January and November last year, the Garrett County Department of Planning and Land Development issued a total of 697 building permits, which includes single family stick-built homes, modular homes, duplexes, town houses, and commercial buildings. The declared val-ue of those projects was $106.4 million, and the square footage was about 1.61 million.

For the same period this year, 650 permits have been issued for buildings with a total declared value of $116.1 million and a total square footage of about 1.68 million. The chief noted that the value increase could be attributed in part to multimillion dollar projects such as the proposed Garrett College dormitory

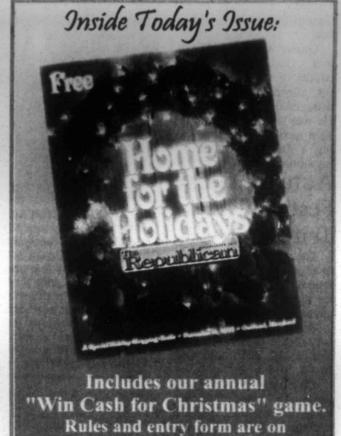

Slated to open in the fall 2007 semester, the new dorm will have 72 bathrooms and more than 80 bedrooms. It's a pretty big building, Torrington said.

He also reported that his office recently issued an occupancy permit for a new building at the Adventure Sports Center International site on Marsh Hill. The center's grand opening is scheduled for April 1.

"We're also close to issuing a temporary occupancy for ClosetMaid," Torrington said. That manufacturing facility will open early next year in the Northern Garrett

Wilburn, 64, died Saturday while he was en route to the fire hall in McHenry, responding to a structure fire alarm in the Friendsville area. Wilburn's vehicle careened off the highway and into a ravine along U.S. Rt. 219; however, his death was apparently the result of a medical episode and not from the accident. GC COMMISSIONERS TAKE THE OATH - Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, and Denny Glotfelty are pictured, left to right, being sworn in as Garrett County commissioners at the courthouse on Tuesday. Giving the oath is Sondra Buckel, chief deputy clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court. County staff members and the commissioners' families and friends attended the ceremony and a brief reception that followed. "I'm honored to be serving as your county commissioner again, and thank you for your support," said incumbent Gregg. Holliday, also an incumbent, echoed those sentiments and attributed much of the county's success to the staff members. "Thank you all for being here, and thank you for your support," Glotfelty told the many people who came to see him be sworn in as a commissioner for the first time. "It's a privilege to be here."The Board of County Commissioners later in the day nominated Gregg as chairman of the board for 2007 and 2010. "Her owners gave her up because she dug up their yard," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "She is a nice girl. Please come in to learn more about her." Also available for adoption is a young female beagle mix, above right, who was picked up as a stray earlier this week without any tags. "She is very loving and willing to please," said the spokesperson. "She is not real big, but makes up for it with her kisses!" Below are a young female calico, who was picked up in Friendsville, and a longhaired female sandy colored tabby, who is said to be very loving. "We have had a large intake of animals in the last two weeks - many strays without tags, several owner give-ups with chewing issues, and some litters of pupples from dogs that should be spayed," said the spokesperson. "When considering getting a pet, especially during the holiday season, remember that it needs time and attention and that veterinary care is an annual expense!" The 6-month-old-old black/white puppy featured last week is still available, along with many nice young adult dogs and adult cats. For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

Courageous and Responsive...

The feeling that government tends to be unresponsive to the opinions and desires of the general public is all too common, and is often justifiable. But once in a while, when the people speak, elected officials

A perfect example of such a response was this week's decision by the Garrett County commissioners to table their proposed paper gaming ordinance that was apparently destined to be submitted to the General Assembly of Maryland in January. The ordinance would have required various licenses, fees, and taxation of all paper gaming in the county, the proceeds of which would be used for fire and emergency rescue services. But after getting an earful of negative opinions and concerns about the proposed ordinance at an informational meeting, no doubt coupled with letters and telephone calls, the commissioners have decided that this ordinance, at least in its present form, is not in the best interest of the county and its many non-profit organizations, including the fire departments and rescue squads.

We extend appreciation to the commissioners for really listening to their constituents and then changing their minds on this particular proposal. Doing 180-degree turns on one's ideas and propositions can be risky business for elected officials because such actions are viewed by some as wishy-washy or lacking courage. However, they can also be viewed as just the opposite - courageous. More importantly, as stated above, the commissioners listened, considered all of the input, and then responded according to the wishes of the majority. This case also demonstrates how important it is for citizens to make their views known to elected officials, by attending public hearings and information meetings, writing letters, and making telephone calls. Providing input may not always bring about the desired change of course by the those in charge, but sometimes it does, as in this case. Further, a lack of response by constituents (as long as there has been adequate notice about the proposal provided) can only be interpreted by elected officials as support for

We couldn't help but notice the cover of your paper last week. On the front page was the new president of Garrett College at his inauguration beginning with a processional led by the Garrett College Pipes & Drums. Below the fold were two pictures of Garrett Pipes and Drums and Jerry McGee leading the Garrett Community Concert Band.

We learned recently that the Garrett College Pipes & Drums receives a paltry $500 per year from the college, to be used to defray travel expenses only (and only when using college vehicles)! No other support - for uniforms, equipment, continuing education or supplies - is provided. They are put into the position of not only performing (rehearsals and the actual performances) for free in many cases, but in having to do their own fundraising. Missing from our Autumn Glory celebration this year, our wonderful Pipes & Drums were marching in a parade in a different town. They were in another town because the other town paid

We can't believe how we take for granted the contribution Jerry McGee and this group make to Garrett College and our community. We hope GC's new president, Dr. Dauphinais, values this group by including a substantial line item in their budget supporting this wonderful community asset. Christmas Notes... by Leigh Clements

Traditionally, this is the time of year for the office holi day Christmas party. In one local business (I'm not saying which one), the holiday party is organized around a potluck lunch hour meal, and every one (well, almost every one) signs up to bring a dish. Here's the way the sign-up

明明明明明明明明明明

Here's one I recently heard that I'm retrofitting for the Christmas holiday season. A young, attractive, single, career woman was going through her mother's attic looking for the Christmas decorations that had been place in storage. In doing so, she found an unusual looking longnecked bottle with a cork in the top. She pulled the cork from the bottle and a genie popped out dressed in a red and white Santa Claus suit.

"It's your lucky day," he said to the surprised young woman. "You get one wish, so make it good." The young woman was suddenly filled with the Christmas spirit and wanted to share her feelings of goodwill with all mankind. She happened to see her father's world atlas and quickly turned to a map of the Mideast. She directed the genie's attention to the map and said, "I want peace in the Mideast. I want all the people from different countries plowed or cindered. There and cultures, and different religions to love one another and live in peace."

The genie looked at her for a moment and then said, "Lady, let's be reasonable. I'm powerful, but not that powerful. I'm also merciful, so I'll give you another opportunity. And, please, ask for something within reason." The lady thought for a moment and started to smile. "Ok," she said. "I want a relationship with a man, and not just any man. He has to be willing to help around the house, do some cooking, some cleaning, some chores, and he's got to be good with kids - willing to change diapers and all ing (Friday) on my way to that. I don't want a complete sports freak; he's gotta be able to get off the couch during football, baseball, and basketball season and mingle with the guests, you know help out in the kitchen. He's got to be romantic, handsome, a good listener, and, most of all, he should honor and adore me, and want to spend time with me."

The genie looked at her and sighed. "Let me see that Pat Ashby map again," he said.

Early Childhood Development

by Nancy S. Grasmick
Maryland State Superintendent of Schools

Rearing children takes a lifetime, but no time is more important than the first five years. By the time children reach the age of 5, they have developed core intellectual and social skills that will guide how they will build knowledge and foster relationships throughout life. Data collected by the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) indicates that nurturing your child with activities that will help prepare them for kindergarten will continue to have positive effects throughout a child's school years and beyond. Given that all local school systems will implement full-day kindergarten for all students by the 2007-2008 school year, helping younger children prepare is essential to their success.

Maryland has taken a visionary step as the first state to provide a cohesive early childhood development and education approach. In 2005, the General Assembly voted to consolidate all state programs that support early care and education under the Maryland State Department of Education, creating the Division of Early Childhood Development. The division has both the responsibility and authority to license and monitor child care centers and family child care providers, develop curriculum for pre-kindergarten and kindergarten, and set Early Childhood Accreditation, as well as make decisions on other early childhood policy and program issues. The goal is to foster the experiences of Maryland's youngest by allowing one division to cultivate and support all early childhood experiences from birth to 5 years old.

MSDE has identified seven key areas that together comprise the Maryland Model for School Readiness (MMSR) for kindergarten. Teachers use the MMSR to assess the knowledge, skills, and abilities of each kindergartner. The key areas are physical development; language and literacy skills; social and emotional development; mathematical thinking; scientific thinking; social studies; and the arts. Parents may view some of these areas as too advanced for a 5-year-old. However, children understand and learn from their environment in many different ways and are able to apply that knowledge and understanding to other areas. By incorporating a variety of activities into everyday life, you will be creating learning opportunities to help your child develop intellectually, physically, and emotionally.

One of the most effective tools is communicating with your child from the day they are born on. Talk to them about where you are going or what you are doing. Count with them, whether it is on hands or toes, taking steps or going up and down stairs. Read books with them, especially before bedtime. Sing and play music for them. These activities will help your child learn words and sounds, patterns and numbers, rhyming and timing, and help them begin to learn routines and navigate the world.

As your child develops, add activities such as nature walks, or going to a library or store, or visiting a museum, then ask questions about what your child saw or read to help them think of, ask, and answer questions. Talk about work or family to help your child develop a sense of community and what makes people different or the same. Cook with your children to help them count, measure, use kitchen utensils, and even learn good eating habits. Draw with your children to help with visual skills as well as controlling their hands. And always be sure to go outside to play. Physical activity will help build strong bodies and energize minds.

MSDE's Division of Early Childhood Development web site at www.marylandpublicschools.org/MSDE/ divisions/child_care has many resources to help parents get their pre-kindergartners off to a strong start in developing into well-rounded, intelligent people. With information about pre-K programs and nursery schools, to parenting tips and ways to improve your child's school readiness skills, ideas from the Division of Early Childhood Development can help parents shape their child's mind before the age of 5 and long after.

According to police, Foley's injuries do not appear to be life threatening. Minnick is in the Garrett County Detention Center awaiting an initial appearance.

Ruled Arson

Continued from Page A-1 was arrested and charged with arson in the second degree and related charges. A search was under way for the other boy.

According to the report, after allegedly setting the fire, the boys left the home and the fire spread quickly. Information found at the scene led investigators to the home of the 14-year-old from Friendsville who was arrested. The age of the other youth had not yet been determined.

The 14-year-old was remanded to the custody of his parents pending further action.

It has not been determined if any additional action will be taken against the juveniles because of the death of Mr. Wilburn, who had just retired one week earlier. He was a well-known builder/developer in the McHenry area.

A long-time member of the Deep Creek VFC, Wilburn had served as chief for at least 10 years, primarily during the 1990s. According to assistant chief Jason King, Wilburn was still a very active member of the company, currently serving as its president.

VFW ANNOUNCES RESULTS OF ESSAY CONTESTS - The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10077 in Deer Park recently announced the local results of the 2006 Voice of Democracy and Patriot's Penn contests, which the VFW conducts annually for high school and middle school students. These are essay contest sponsored by the VFW to promote civic and patriotic themes. There were 128 entries from Northern and Southern middle schools for the Patriot's Pen contest and three for the Voice of Democracy from Northern High School. The three entries for the Voice of Democracy contest in order of finish were Emily Sisler, Ashleigh Friend, and Bethani Gillum, who received cash prizes of $300, $200, and $100. Sisler's entry advanced to the district level competition this month. The top three winners in the Patriot's Pen contest were Dylan Thomas, Derek Sebold, and Kristen Yant. They also received $300, $200, and $100. In addition, runner-up prizes of $25 went to Emily Huxford, Elizabeth Sines, Jocelyn Williams, Toby Grove, and Michelle Welch. All eight entries advanced to the district level competition, where they will be judged independently from their finish at the local level. Pictured above, left to right, are the Voice of Democracy contest winners from Northern High: Ashleigh Friend, Bethani Gillum, and Emily Sisler with teacher Paul Edwards. Immediately below are the Patriot's Pen Contest winners from Southern Middle. In the front is Kristen Yant. In the middle are Michelle Welch, Elizabeth Sines, and Emily Huxford. In the back are contest chairman Wayne McCaughey, post chaplain Bob Heginbotham, teacher Jane Nolan, post commander Paul Graham, and post adjutant Ron Umbel. Pictured in the photo below are Patriot's Pen contest winners from Northern Middle. In the front row are Derek Sebold and Toby Grove. department," King said.
"We all went to him for guidance and insight. He will be greatly missed."

Prior to his recent retirement, Wilburn owned and operated his own construction firm, which had built a number of new homes and renovated others, primarily in the Deep Creek Lake area.

If tears could build a stairway, and memories a lane,
I would walk right up to Heaven and bring you back again.
No farewell words were spoken, no time to say "goodbye."
You were gone before I knew it, and only God knows why.
My heart still aches with sadness, and secret tears still flow,

What it meant to love you, no one can ever know.

But now I know you want me to mourn for you no more,
To remember all the happy times, life still has much in store.

Since you'll never be forgotten, I pledge to you today —
A hollow place within my heart is where you'll always stay.

Woman Loses Control Of Car Then Hits Tree

A 40-year-old Pennsylvania woman lost control of her 1996 Mercury Sable which slid sideways and struck a tree as she was rounding a curve on Glendale Road today at approximately 7:10 a.m., according to the Maryland State Police.

Sharon Mishler, 40, Boynton, was traveling west on Glendale Road just east of North Glade Road when her car hit a glaze of ice on the road that caused her car to slide and spin out of control, police said.

The passenger, Tracy House, 22, Meyersdale, was slightly injured. House and Mishler were transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital. No serious injuries were reported, and no charges were filed.

The Maryland State Police, the Bittinger Fire Department, and the Northern Rescue Squad responded.

He likes football, he even plays defensive end,
He knows his Pap would have been proud to watch him with a smirk and grin.

I was married on your birthday—it just felt right. We laid matching wedding flowers on your headstone that night.

You would have been proud of your son-in-law and shown him around to be seen, For you see, Dad, I married a United States Marine.

Cameron, Keaton & Colton Upton We would like to thank everyone in the community, the local churches, our family and friends, the fire departments and rescue squad who helped us during our recent house fire.

We appreciate the quick response from Southern Rescue Squad, the Oakland, Deep Creek, Gormania and Deer Park Volunteer Fire Departments. Because of your dedication to helping others, our home was not a total loss. We are truly blessed to live in an area with wonderful and caring volunteers. Please know that our mom and dad would like to thank you too and our whole family would like to wish everyone a Joyous Christmas and Happy New Year.

Have you paid attention to your TV lately? Specifically, have you watched the commercials? Along with the usual holiday ads for toys and jewelry, you'll probably see lots of ads for cars and... trucks. But hay's p m-ups have high-end stereos, luxury exhs, and ther seats. They come with cup holders stable seering wheels. You could drive these re opera without blinking.

...c.e's Michael Perry's truck: a '51 International Harvester with pink paint in between the rust and running boards that couldn't possibly run another mile. In his new book, Truck: A Love Story, Perry writes about falling in love with a truck, and falling in love.

What is it about a man and his pickup? Michael Perry s that he's always had a fondness for his old IH. It got n around, back when he was in nursing school. It was, the old timers say, held together with baling wire, duct tape and prayer, but Perry couldn't part with it. So when the IH began its decline in reliability, it ended up parked in the driveway in front of Perry's house with the notion that, someday, the old truck would be road-worthy again.

On a spring evening, just before the promise of green in the garden, Perry and his brother winched the truck up on a flatbed and took it over to their brother-in-law's garage where, as Perry says, the resurrection "officially commenced." The goal was to have the vehicle fully restored in time for deer hunting in November.

That might've happened, had there not been a monkey-wrench in the plans. Michael Perry fell in love. For real.

They met at a book event at a local library. She emailed him. He got a haircut. They went out. He met her day her. She met his buddies at the fire department. The circled the "L" word with caution. Finally, just after the newly reborn International Harvester pickup took its first too up the road to Farm & Fleet, Michael Perry and his girl ook a trip down the aisle.

here are three "don'ts" you need to keep in mind when searching for and reading this book: Number one: Don't look in the Romance section of your bookstore when you go buy it. Even though Truck: A Love Story is one of the most wonderfully romantic, delightful love stories you're ever going to read - a completely charming heart-melter - you'll probably find it in the memoir section. Number two: Don't discount this book as a gift for a man. Even though Truck: A Love Story is a love story from a man's point of view, it's also a darn fine book about trucks and gear-heads, garages, and gardening and things that will make a man want his own beater to refurbish.

And number three: Don't miss this book. It's that sim-

Truck on out and get Truck: A Love Story. Haul home multiple copies. This book is a gift you'll never tire of giving this Christmas.

The Sea Otters swim team of the Cumberland YMCA recently finished seventh place as a team in the 13-team Hurricane Classic, held at Magnolia. A number of the Garrett County swim team (the Manta Rays) swimmers are among the Sea Otters.

The top Garrett County swimmer in the Hurricane Classic was Krista Hollingsworth, who earned one first place, two second places, a fourth place, a fifth place, and a sixth place.

Competing in the 15-18 girls' division, Hollingsworth won the 100-yard freestyle race with a time of 59.47 seconds. Her secondplace finishes were in the 200 free, with a time of 2:13.19, and in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:19.21. She was fourth in the 100 backstroke, fifth in the 50 free, and sixth in the 200 individual medley.

In the 10-and-under girls' division, Sierra Legeer earned a first place, two seconds, and a sixth place. She won the 50 breast with a time of 45:51, and was second in both the 100 IM (1:28.73) and 50 back.

Courtney Strubin captured a second place and a fifth place in the girls' 13-15 division, as she was runnerup in the 100 back (1:15.81) and fifth in the 100 breast (41:54). She placed sixth in the 50 free.

Other Manta Rays who competed for the Sea Otters were Jillian and Kristen Yant, Sara and Sam Jones, Sydney Legeer, Zack Thomas, and Alex Miske.

RAMS FIND THE WINNING ZONE - The Southern varsity boys' basketball team found the magic touch against Petersburg, as Ryan DeWitt (#23) recorded a double-double - scoring 24 points and grabbing 13 rebounds - in pacing the Rams to a 49-39 win over the Vikings. Above, DeWitt hits a short jumper as teammates Erik Cussins (#45) and Adam VanBogelen (#10) prepare to follow up. Below, Cussins releases a jump shot from the post as teammates Sean McCreery (#5), Jeff Stem (#3), and Tim Reams (#22) look on. Southern plays Northern tomorrow night in Accident at 7:30 p.m.

at Southern High School Tuesday evening prior to the start of the Rams' varsity basketball game against Petersburg, as former Ram and SHS graduate Tobi Stoner was recognized for his accomplishments in baseball. Stoner was selected in the 15th round of the Major League Baseball draft this past June by the New York Mets after he completed a collegiate career at Davis and Elkins College. He was awarded a framed photo acknowledging his accomplishments, and in a symbolic gesture, Stoner donated the photo back to the school for display on the SHS Athletic Hall of Fame. Making the presentation was Tom Woods, school principal, pictured above ght. Among those present were D&E baseball coach Ryan Brisben and Matt Wondolowski, the scout who engineered Stoner's being drafted. "This presentation is not only a tribute to Tobi's athletic ability, but also his character," Woods said, adding that the dream of millions of 9-year-old Little League players is to play professional baseball. "For Tobi that dream has come true."

The following Southern High School graduates and standout student athletes are back on the courts this season playing for their respective collegiate programs.

Ashley Liller, who is in her senior year of eligibility at Division I Mount St. Mary's University, scored 13 points in a recent loss to Loyola University.

As a junior Liller appeared in 28 games and started in her last 19. She averaged 5.1 points and 2.4 rebounds per game. Her best effort was an 18-point, five-rebound performance in a come-from-behind win over Monmouth University on Feb. 18. She was named the Accelorade Player of the Game for her efforts.

She also had a 13-point, Coach Don Stemple. She four-assist, three-steal, has already earned a B.S. three-rebound game in a 60-45 victory over Central stration and is working on a Connecticut State.

Mount St. Mary's recorded a 12-16 season last year, plenty of playing time in her finishing sixth in the 11- junior season at Division II

HIS FIRST DEER – Myles Perron, 9 years old and a student at Broad Ford Elementary School, went hunting for his first time on Saturday, Dec. 9, and came home with his first deer. He was hunting on private property in Mtn. Lake Park. He is the son of Rick Perron, Oakland.

BAGS HER FIRST BUCK - Chelcee Rinker, 12, of Aurora, W.Va., killed her first buck, an eight point, recently at Brookside, W.Va., while hunting with her dad Travis. Her mom Lee Ann said Chelcee shot the buck with a 243 rifle that she purchased with her own money. Chelcee is a student at Aurora Elementary School.

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT, AT ANY SPEED ONE MAY WANT — A fascinating work of ingenuity can now be found atop Wisp mountain in McHenry, where men and women have designed and built a river to their liking. The Adventure Sports Center international (ASCI) has constructed the whitewater training course, and purports the Garrett County structure is the premier such course in the entire United States. Walking along the banks of the manmade river, one would think it is a natural waterway, somehow positioned in a way that it loops around on itself. However, a great deal of engineering went into the course, which can be adjusted to allow varying water speeds, from beginner settings to advanced. These photos were taken in October during a walking tour of the course while it was empty. Matt Taylor, ASCI director of operations and two-time whitewater slalom Olympian, along with other whitewater athletes took tour groups along the path, showing such features as the "Volkswagen rock," pictured above, and at the far right above, the pump house at the top of the course, where the two mighty "wave shapers" shown send the water out at varying speeds. Taylor is pictured below on another wave shaper farther down the course. He explained that the hinged apparatus can be set at levels that will provide a different ride each time. The walls of the shaper are vital to both the quality of the whitewater effect as well as to the safety of the kayakers, who are alded by "eddy-dampeners" that help keep them from becoming trapped in circling water. The course has been selected as the site for the 2007 Whitewater Slalom National Championships, slated for Aug. 4 and 5. Olympians Brett Heyl and Scott Parsons are to be among those in attendance at the event, which will be the last race for the U.S. national team before its pre-Olympic race for the 2008

Seniors Urged To Apply Now For

College Admission

With Maryland recording more than 319,500 enrollments last fall, its highest in history, and with continued growth expected for fall 2007, the Maryland Higher Education Commission encourages Maryland's college-bound students to apply as soon as possible for admission and financial aid to ensure full consideration.

The earlier students apply for admission, the better," said Dr. Calvin W. Burnett, secretary of higher education. "We are anticipating increased competition for college admissions and for financial aid programs that are awarded on a first-come, first-served ba-

Vitamin C And The Common Cold

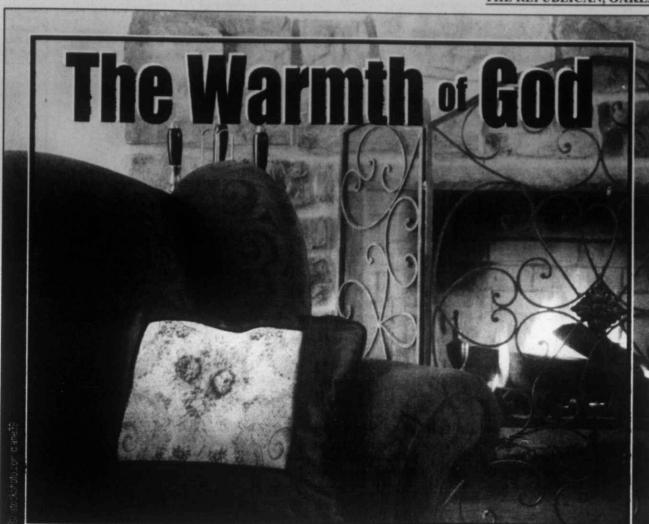

Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is one of the soclaied water-soluble vitamins. It is necessary for many bodily processes, including iron absorption and collagen formation. Vitamin C is also an antioxidant that protects body cells and tissues from damage. Fruits (especially citrus fruits) and vegetables are excellent sources of vitamin C. This vitamin has been used to prevent and treat the common cold; however, evidence supporting its effectiveness remains controversial.

The typical dose of vitamin C used to prevent the common cold is 200mg daily or more. Doses up to 2000 mg daily have been used to treat the common cold. Reported side effects of vitamin C are nausea, headache, vomiting, heartburn, and abdominal cramps.

Tow wonderful to relax by a bright fire after being outside in the Lold! Relief runs through your body in a soothing rush as the warmth envelopes you with open arms...a welcome respite from the frigid, biting air.

Our spirit needs warmth and light just as much as our body does. We need a source of soothing, spiritual warmth to relieve the chill of life's disappointments and hurt feelings. Is there such a place of comfort?

God is our source of spiritual warmth. Psalm 18:28 says, "You, O Lord, keep my lamp burning; my God turns my darkness into light." Visit your House of Worship each week. There, in an atmosphere of welcoming love and you can rest in the spiritual comfort of His arms

Life is Inexhaustible

The universe is inexhaustible, on both the largest and the smallest scales. There is no reason to believe that we could ever physically circumscribe the universe, or that there are a finite number of stars. Nor is it likely that there is some smallest particle or that we will ever get to the point in analyzing atoms and subatomic particles where we can say that there is nothing more to say about it. Likewise, our universe also is inexhaustible spiritually. That is, there is inexhaustibility when it comes to spirituality and meaning. We can never circumscribe or limit the meaning of a text, or that of our lives. We can never say that something means only this one thing and nothing more. We find layer upon layer of meaning in texts, and they can be interpreted literally, symbolically, or both at the same time. And there is seemingly never an end to new and fresh interpretations. This inexhaustibility of meaning entails that the Bible and many other religious texts are living documents and are always fresh with new meaning, and this has radical implications for our lives. The inexhaustibility of meaning is one reason that we can always go back to books such as the Bible, which, despite having been read countless times, always seem to contain new meanings. Similarly, we should also be open to finding new meanings in our

For the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and spirit.

· Ants can be found virtually everywhere in the world - the only places where the ubiquitous insects aren't found are around the North Pole and the South Pole, and on frozen mountain peaks. There are 12,000 known species of ant, and entomologists estimate that there are 10 trillion ants worldwide. If you were to lump all of them together, the combined weight would be roughly the same as the weight of all the people in the world.

· British historian Edward Gibbon wrote the six volumes of his literary masterpiece "The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" in 20 years. It took Noah Webster 36 years to write his dictioпагу.

• It was beloved star of film and television Lucille Ball who made the following observation: "The secret of staying young is to live honestly, eat slowly and lie about your age."

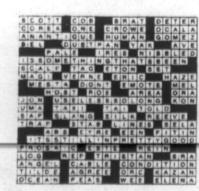

· As the cold season progresses wherever you are, you might think longingly of a nice long vacation in Hawaii. And with good reason: In the winter, Honolulu has an average high temperature of 80 F.

· If you're planning on starting or expanding your family, you might want to keep this in mind: A new baby in the home typically increases electricity consumption by 25 percent.

· Every September, the town of Shreveport, La., traditionally hosts the Olympics. The Office Olympics, that is. Teams, which must be made up of five men and women who are actual office employees, compete in such events as the Office Chair Roll-Off, the Water Break Relay and - my personal favorite - Toss the Boss.

Thought for the Day: "I refuse to spend my life worrying about what I eat. There is no pleasure worth forgoing just for an extra three years in the geriatric ward." - John Mortimer

· On Dec. 19, 1732, Benjamin Franklin of Philadelphia first publishes "Poor Richard's Almanack." The book, filled with proverbs preaching industry and prudence, was published continuously for 25 years and became one of the most popular publications in colonial America, selling an average of 10,000 copies a year.

. On Dec. 18, 1865, following its ratification by the requisite three-quarters of the states earlier in the month, the 13th Amendment, banning slavery, is formally adopted into the U.S. Constitution.

· On Dec. 20, 1892, Charles and Frank Duryea's third automobile was the first to use pneumatic tires. Before the pneumatic tire, wheels were often made of solid rubber. This made travel a bumpy experience, as the streets of 1892 were made of dirt or cobblestone.

· On Dec. 21, 1937, the Lincoln Tunnel was officially opened to traffic, allowing motorists to drive between New Jersey and Manhattan beneath the Hudson River.

. On Dec. 22, 1949, Australian twin brothers Robin and Maurice Gibb are born. Together with their brother Barry, they later formed the Bee Gees (for "Brothers Gibb"). After adding a drummer and bassist, the group began racking up such hits as "To Love Somebody" (1967) and "I've Got to Get a Message to You" (1968).

. On Dec. 24, 1953, "Dragnet" becomes the first network series with a regular sponsor when Fatima cigarettes signs on to back the show. The program was one of the first dramatic series in a medium that had been dominated to that point by anthology shows.

· On Dec. 23, 1968, the crew and captain of the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship USS Pueblo are released after 11 months imprisonment by the government of North Korea. The ship, and its 83-man crew, was seized by North Korean warships on Jan. 23 and charged with intruding into North Korean waters. Both captain and crew were horribly treated and later recounted their torture at the hands of the North Koreans.

No Dogs Allowed

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: One of my favorite morning activities is to take my dog "Jake" to a little park nearby and play fetch. However, a sign went up recently that says "No Dogs." I live in a small city where there is not much open space, and pets have to stay on leashes almost everywhere. If I want to play fetch with Jake, I have to put him in the car and drive out to a hiking area and guess what, new regulations about pets are going up there, too! What can I do? - Frustrated in the Northeast

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I'm with you! Finding open space for dogs, even in the suburbs, is becoming increasingly difficult. Many municipal parks do not permit them at all, even on a leash.

Action groups have formed in many cities to address this issue, and are hammering out compromises with their municipalities that allow both pets and people to enjoy open spaces. Chances are, one has formed in your community; if it hasn't, consider organizing a group. Look for (or put up) signs at the local vet's office and on community bulletin boards. Contact the local newspaper. Start a Web site or a blog. Tell every owner you meet about the group.

A group should consider all the options available for off-leash spaces and present them at public meetings. It should also consider the issues that likely caused pet bans in the first place: pet waste disposal, aggressive dogs, fearful adults, small children in the area, etc., and develop solutions and/or rules of conduct for group members to mitigate or eliminate these issues.

O.I recently inherited a set of . sterling flatware in the Acorn pattern. What can you tell me about it? — Susan, Galveston, Texas

A . I assume the Acorn pattern you have is the one issued by Georg Jensen in 1915. Jensen's silver business opened in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1904, and it quickly became one of the leading producers of silverware in the world. Look for a wreath topped by a crown with the words "Georg Jensen, Inc.," his hallmark. An American company, George Jensen, Inc., opened in New York in 1941 but ceased operations about a decade later.

Your pattern is referenced and priced in Warman's Sterling Silver Flatware: Value and Identification Guide by Mark F. Moran (KP Books, $24.99). The guide features more than 18,000 listings and values supplemented by 1,200 photos along with histories and descriptions. It is the essential guide to prominent smiths, manufacturers and patterns.

My father recently gave me several old German porce-lain coins from the 1940s. Metal was such a precious commodity during the war, the Nazi government stopped making traditional coins and turned, instead, to porcelain. I haven't been able to find out much about them. Can you help me? - Nancy, Casper, Wyo.

. Your coins sound quite unusu-A . Your coins sound quite unusu-al. Ron Guth is a German coin specialist, and he is especially knowledgeable about porcelain coins. You can contact him at P.O. Box 900, La Jolla, CA 92038; ron@germancoins.com; and 1-619-972-9449. Check out the porcelain coins that Guth has for sale at www.germancoins.com/porcelain_coins/porcelain.html

One of the better reference books is Unusual World Coins by Colin R. Bruce II, edited by Tom Michael and George Cohal (KP Books, $39.99). This comprehensive guide features novel non-circulating coins, including fantasy issues, micro-nation coinage, metallic types and coins of pseudo-états. It is highly recom-

TV-PIPELINE

'Wildfire' will ride again - and very soon

By Jay Bobbin © Zap2it

Q: Please tell us if "Wildfire" will be back on ABC Family. -Margie Loesch, Bulverde, Texas

A: It will, and you don't have much longer to wait. The series' third season is set to begin Jan. 1, with Genevieve Cortese back as budding jockey Kris. And there's even better news: ABC Family already has committed to a fourth season of the

Q: How did Marissa, played by Mischa Barton, die on "The O.C."? I hadn't watched since the first season. -Shayla McClelland, Dallas

A: She was killed in a car accident. Her on-and-off beau Ryan (Ben McKenzie) was driving the vehicle when it was rammed and sent careening down a hill by a drunken Volchok (Cam Gigandet), the questionable fellow she had taken up with during an exceptionally low point in her life. Ryan pulled her from the car before it exploded, then she died in his arms.

Q: What other shows has the actress who plays Mary on "Jericho" been in? -Eleanor Horder, Arlington Heights, Ill.

A: Clare Carey probably is best-known for playing Craig T. Nelson's daughter on the sitcom "Coach." She also was a regular on the short-lived melodrama "Point Pleasant" and she has made guest appearances on many series including "The Unit," "ER," "Without a Trace," "Cold Case," "Stargate SG-1" and "Weeds."

Q: Will the Beatles movie "Help!" ever be released on

Q: Recently as I was watching "The New Adventures of Old Christine," the characters were at a school fundraiser, and one of the mothers looked like Mary McDonough, who played Erin on "The Waltons." Could it have been her? -Mary Ann Enstall, St. Louis

A: Yes, it was. She actually has made a couple of appearances on the CBS sitcom in that role. In recent years, McDonough also has done guest turns on shows including "Boston Legal," "Will & Grace" and

"The West Wing." Send questions of general interest via e-mail to typipeline@tribune. com. Writers must include their names, cities and states. Personal replies cannot be sent.

CIRCULATING AIR by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q. In the winter, the bedrooms are downright toasty, but the downstairs is cold. Is there a simple way I make my house

The path to success in home comfort is to keep air moving around. That has many benefits, notably keeping reasonably uniform temperatures throughout; but it also helps avoid mildew forming in nooks and crannies.

A typical home furnace has a choice of two settings for the fan: either "on" or "automatic." That's controlled by a switch at your thermostat. In the "automatic" mode, the fan only comes on when the furnace is firing and producing new hot air. In the "on" mode, the fan is on all the

The cost of the electricity required to just leave the fan on constantly is very small. However, a lot of people presume that the fan shouldn't run unless the furnace is producing heat. Therefore, they leave the fan setting on 'automatic." That's a mistake. Actually, you would be better off with the fan "on" all the time, because it circulates air throughout the entire house.

With the fan on "automatic," as soon as the furnace stops producing heat, the fan shuts off and no longer forces air to circulate. A short time later, the warmer air will naturally drift upward, and cold air will drift downward. The name for that is convection. If your upstairs bedrooms are toasty, it's because the warm air just naturally wafted up the stairs, at a rate too slow to give you the feeling of a "breeze." Still, you could easily have upstairs rooms 5" F warmer than first-floor rooms, and a basement recreation room that is colder still.

On the other hand, with the fan constantly "on," the air throughout the house keeps moving even when the furnace is not heating it up. Warm air that has already drifted upstairs gets a little boost to keep on moving, and finds its way back down, usually through the cold air return throughout the entire house is more uniform.

Opening and closing vents at different seasons of the year is a good way to help maintain good air circulation. In the winter, close the heat-vents in the upstairs bedrooms, and open the downstairs vents. Then the furnace Honor Society delivers warm air to the open vents, and nature lets the warmth drift up the stairs.

The same principle holds true when the furnace pro- of Oakland was recently vides central air conditioning in the summer. For an air inducted to the Omicron Pi conditioned house in the summer, do just the reverse: open the top-floor vents and close the downstairs vents, and let nature draw the cool air down the stairs.

With the fan down in the basement in the furnace, whatever air is in the various rooms will be drawn in by the cold air returns and run through the fan again.

If you have baseboard heating instead of a forced-air system, essentially the same effect can be achieved with a ceiling fan. The whole idea is to keep air moving, and the price of electricity to do so is small. So small, in fact, that it's a net saving on your total bills for electricity plus oil or gas or wood, because you're no longer spending extra money for fuel to produce too much heat in some rooms.

In a home with a cathedral ceiling, it is doubly important to keep air moving, or else a pocket of warm air will form near the ceiling. There it does nobody any good, and merely increases the heat loss through the ceiling - into the insulation and out through the roof. Circulating air by keeping a fan running prevents that region of warm air from forming, and moves the warmth down to the level where the people are

In all cases, keeping air moving cuts down on the need to use fuel, and it adds very little to the electric bill to keep a fan running constantly.

BRIDGING THE GAP!

Like the question of the chicken and the egg, homeowners planning to buy a new home must ask, "Which comes first?" Do you sell first, and then look frantically for the new home, or buy first and risk maintaining and financing two properties?

There's more risk than just two mortgages. If you're rushed to sell your home to purchase a new one, you might be forced to list at, or accept, a lower price than expected. If you're pressed to buy a new home after selling your existing home, you may be forced into paying an unexpectedly higher price.

What is one to do? Build a bridge! Yes, there is a financing option called a "bridge loan," so named because it "spans the gap" between your sale and your

One type of "bridge" lets you simultaneously pay off your existing mortgage and make a down payment on the new one. You make payments only on the new loan, and pay off the bridge loan when your old home

Another kind of "bridge" allows you to borrow against the equity in your old home to make the down payment on the new home. Both "bridges" still mean two loans, but the costs may be offset as a result of having more time to get top dollar for the sale of your existing home. See you on the other side!

If you'd like to buy or sell a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a

WVU GRADS

At least two students from this area received their bachelor's degrees in West Virginia University's Dec. 10 graduation ceremonies. They are Becky Lantz, daughter of Kirk and Anita Lantz, Aurora, and Mark Bachtel, son of Carl and Cynthia Bachtel, Horse

Shoe Run. WINTERS BIRTH

A son was born Dec. 5. 2006, to Charles W. "Chuck" and Emilie Winters of Ashburn, Va. The baby weighed 9 pounds, 8 ounces. He has an older brother, Clark, and older sister, Lane.

Grandparents are Blair and Richie Hill of Charleston, and Carl and Nancy Winters of Manassas, Va. Claude and Jean Winters of Eglon are the paternal greatgrandparents, along with Ilene Fint of Old Town and the late Glenn Fint.

PERSONAL MENTION The Aurora United

Methodist Women recently met for a lunch at the Gas Lite Restaurant in Oakland.

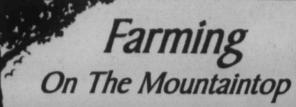

Carol Wotring of Aurora underwent surgery last week for knee replacement, and is now a patient in the sub-acute unit at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Grace Giordano of Cortland Acres Nursing Home fell recently at home and again at Garrett Memorial. She was transferred Monday to Ruby Memorial Hospital for possible surgical treatment. She is the mother of Ruby Feather, Eglon.

Brittany Stemple of Aurora was one of the Preston High students accepted into the Preston Knights National Honor Society chapter this past Sunday, Dec. 10. She is a daughter of David L. and Cheryl Stemple, Aurora. Foreign exchange students in the area were treated to a weekend at the Wisp Resort at Deep Creek Lake. Tiffany, staying with the David and Cheryl Stemple family, was one of those students who spent a weekend learning to ski. Tiffany is from Taiwan.

Among the students named for the Golden Eagle award at Terra Alta/East Preston are Haley Rocha, sixth grade and Desiree Patton and Cody Johnston, 7th-8th grade.

RECOGNIZED FOR SERVICE TO FSA/ASCS - At the December 6 Preston County Farm Service Agency (FSA) Committee meeting, Vice-Chairperson Dayton A. Bolyard was recognized for concluding his third three-year term as a member of the committee. Bolyard began his service with FSA's predecessor agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, as a committee member in 1990. He was later elected to the position of first alternate to the Preston County FSA Committee, then moved up to committee member in 1997 to fill the unfinished term of Wade Harsh. Then in that year's election he was elected to the committee and was subsequently re-elected to serve two more three-year terms. Bolyard is pictured above right receiving a certificate of appreciation, FSA cap, and a cake from Eric McCartney, county FSA executive director.

thing has a negative aspect. What is negative about our mild winter? My daughters believe that it is important to have snow for their Christmas spirit. I remember a few years ago the one good thing that got me in the Christmas spirit was the program at Accident Elementary School, with the adorable little folks and very warm experience. There is no school that has more caring teachers than at Accident, including Bit-tinger's own Cyndi Kolbe and Cindy Stanton, who are a pair of first-grade teachers. my life these days is that I am afraid that I would have to confront something that I can't do. I can't give a perfect Christmas to my dear daughters. Both parents won't be there together as we were for many years. All I want for Christmas is myself, the old Joan, who could meet any challenge with self-confidence.

We have some elaborate tions here in Bittinger. Some are just with one color and many others with is how my Buckle grandparents decorated. Their former home now belongs to Denver and Naomi Beitzel, and I love their sculpture of an angel with a trumpet. I also like Audrey Brenneman's home, with just a nice-shaped pine tree lit with bright colored lights. Something new in Bittinger is at the home of Delmar Yoder, who has the manger

Edward Jones Investment Representative Hosts Open House Tuesday, Dec. 19, 3:00 - 7:00 pm

John Rose, an investment representative with the financial services from Edward Jones, invites the public to attend an open house at his branch office.

"We are happy to be part of the Oakland community and would like to express our appreciation for the confidence and support we receive year-round." Rose said.

Edward Jones provides financial services for individual investors in the United States and, through its affiliates, in Canada and the United Kingdom. Every aspect of the firm's business, from the types of investment options offered to the location of branch offices, is designed to cater to individual investors in the communities in which they live and work. AMERICAN HISTORY ESSAY CONTEST WINNER NAMED - Jillian Yant, a fifth grader in Jodi Nichols's class at Broad Ford Elementary School, recently won the Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution American History Essay Contest. This contest commemorated the 400th anniversary of the Jamestown Colony. The fifth graders who submitted essays wrote as if they were one of the early settlers writing a letter to a family member who remained in England, telling them about the activities and hardships involved with helping to establish the settlement. Yant's essay will be forwarded to the state competition, and the state winner will continue in the national competition. The chapter competition was organized by Rosetta Rodeheaver, and the judges were Robert Rodeheaver, Rosetta Rodeheaver, and Beverly Beard. Each student who submitted an essay was awarded a certificate. Yant received $75 for her winning essay. Pictured above, from the left, are Suzanne Sincell, principal at Broad Ford; Rosetta Rodeheaver, chairperson of the history committee; Yant; and Aletta Martz, DAR regent. Below are Natalie Tracey, Yant, Logan Miller, and Rebecca Lee, all fifth graders who received a certificate for their essays.

A cold sore is a small blister that usually appears on the outer area of the lip. Cold sores, also known as fever blisters, are reddish or purple and may be filled with fluid.

This type of sore is different from canker sores, which are found on the inside of the mouth. Cold sores are common and contagious, and are causes by the herpes simplex virus. Exposure to his virus may occur some twenty days before signs and symptoms of infection occur. The signs and symptoms of a cold sore usually last from 7 to 10 days.

Once a person has had a cold sore, the virus remains inactive in the skin and may reactivate in the same area at a later time. Stress, fever, and exposure to the sun may trigger to 10 days. If cold sores occur frequently, antiviral medications are available with a prescription to decrease the duration of the cold sore and also the associated pain.

Over-the-counter pain relievers, such as ibuprofen and acetaminophen, may be taken to alleviate the pain

December 21, 2006 AT 2:00 PM
ALL THAT fee-simple LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $17,000 in the form of cash or readily available funds acceptable to the Trustees required at the time of sale. Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All other public charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, condo/HOA dues, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incident to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. All transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be paid by the Purchaser. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property, and assumes risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale. If ratification or settlement is delayed for any reason there shall be no abatement of interest. The sale is subject to post-sale audit of the status of the loan with the loan servicer including, but not limited to, determination of whether the borrower entered into any repayment agreement, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to the sale. In any such event, this sale shall be null and void, and the Purchaser's sole remedy, in law or equity, shall be the return of the deposit without interest. If Purchaser fails to settle within ten days of ratification, he agrees to pay, attorneys' fees in the amount of $750.00, plus costs, if the Trustees have moved to resell the property. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with such a motion on himself and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by said bidder at the time of the sale. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if the sale is not ratified by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser agrees to pay $295.00 at settlement to review of the settlement documents.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $9,000 in the form of cash or readily available funds acceptable to the Trustees required at the time of sale. Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All other public charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, condo/HOA dues, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incident to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. All transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be paid by the Purchaser. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property, and assumes risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale. If ratification or settlement is delayed for any reason there shall be no abatement of interest. The sale is subject to post-sale audit of the status of the loan with the loan servicer including, but not limited to, determination of whether the borrower entered into any repayment agreement, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to the sale. In any such event, this sale shall be null and void, and the Purchaser's sole remedy, in law or equity, shall be the return of the deposit without interest. If Purchaser fails to settle within ten days of ratification, he agrees to pay attorneys' fees in the amount of $750.00, plus costs, if the Trustees have moved to resell the property. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with such a motion on himself and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by said bidder at the time of the sale. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if the sale is not ratified by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust from John A. Reams, dated April 30, 2004, and recorded in Liber 1039, folio 577 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on DECEMBER 15, 2006, AT 11:00 AM ALL THAT FEE-SIMPLE LOT OF GROUND AND THE IM-PROVEMENTS THEREON situated in Garrett Co., MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust. The property is improved by a dwelling.

The property will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $10,500 by cash, or certified check. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Sub. Trustees. If the purchaser fails to go to settlement within ten days of the ratification, the deposit shall be forfeited to the Sub. Trustees and all of the expenses of this sale (including attorney fees and full commission on the gross sale price of the sale) shall be charged against and paid out of the forfeited deposit. Purchaser(s) acknowledge the obligation to settle within ten days of ratification of the foreclosure sale. In the event that settlement does not occur within ten days, the purchaser(s) shall be in default. Upon such default, Sub. Trustees shall file a Motion and Order to resell the property at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser(s). Purchaser(s) hereby consent to entry of such resale order without further notice. The defaulting purchaser(s) shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, including, but not limited to, exceptions to the sale, bankruptcy filings by interested parties, court administration of the foreclosure or unknown title defects, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water and all public charges including electrical, sanitation and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, are to be adjusted for the current year to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $250.00 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Sub. Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. Purchaser agrees to pay $295.00 at settlement to seller's attorney for review of the settlement documents. (Matter #535004)

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Laundry Equipment Services, Inc., a West Virginia Corporation, is offering an opportunity for ownership of a brand new coin-operated laundromat to be built in Oakland. We have secured a location which our Demographic Survey shows to be very positive.

We are developing equipment sizing, plans for machine layout, and marketing strategies. Financing (in some cases 100%) is available to qualified individuals with no pre-penalty payment and at attractive interest rates. This is a business with an attractive return on investment and a long-term income. It requires a minimum of owner management and is an excellent source of secondary income.

Individuals must have a good credit record and an ability to invest capital for leasehold improvements and start-up operating expenses

Contact: Jim Kell at 301-491-9500, or Jim@leslaundry.com. Visit our website at www.leslaundry.com. Serious inquiries, please.

The Republican Special Edition

Donald W. Sincell Editor Lisa Rook Advertising Manager

Betty L. Williams Circulation Manager

The Republican was established in 1877. It is the oldest newspaper in Garrett County. Entered at the Post Office at Oakland, Maryland 21550, as second class mail matter. The Republican is published by the Sincell Publishing Co., Inc., every Thursday at The Republican building, Oakland, Maryland.

WIN CASH for Christmas!

All you have to do is count the total number of times the word "Christmas" appears within all the "boxed" advertisements in the The Republican Newspaper's Christmas supplement, "Home For The Holidays."

Count only the 9-letter word "Christmas".

DO NOT count the word
"Christmas" in this ad.

For example:

Total for these two ads is 3 times. Look at each & every advertisement to find the grand total.

A drawing of all the correct entries will be held to determine the three winners. Entries must be received by Tuesday, Dec. 19.

One entry per person, employees of The Republican and their families are excluded from winning.

There are some experiences in life that will change you forever. Some change you for the better, but some do not. Some make you stronger, and some test your very worth as a human being. Then there are few that leave you standing in the cold behind a van thinking, "What the heck is going on?" I have had one such experience. I went shopping on Black Friday.

I have been searching for a television. Not that I absolutely need a TV, but I am a competitive online gamer, and the half-inch TV I was currently using just was not cutting it. When the Local Enormous Department Store announced that they would be selling a 52" high definition wide-screen projection television, my heart leaped out of my chest. This was something I needed. This was and element which seemed to be essential to my very survival. I did some quick preparation, which consisted of eating chips and soda, and began my quest. This is the event schedule as they happened.

I finished my meal and got into bed. I knew I was heading into battle, so I spent the night with one eye open, just to be sure.

2:45 a.m., November 24. Black Friday:

After hearing whispers the day before of people wanting to get up early to buy my TV, I decided the only appropriate time to head up to the Local Enormous Department Store would be three in the morning. I got in the van acquired from my parents the day before, and began the voyage to the battle-field.

2:53 a.m. Arrival at the Local Enormous Department Store:

Yawning and stretching, I exhaustedly made my way in the front door. There were not many cars parked out front, so I was confident in my early arrival. As I walked in, however, I sensed something was different. Amongst the familiar Subway funk, I sensed the spicy sting of tension lingering. I carefully made my way through the shopping carts, and peered, terrified and dripping sweat, into the storefront. I had a panic attack. All of the televisions were there. They were lined up perfectly in the front of the store, neatly packed in their original shipping boxes and on large wheeled carts, nicknamed "boats." There were six or seven of them, and attached to each box, was a person clinging to it, as a dying patient clings to life. I took a breath, and made my way towards them. As I approached, one by one they began to notice my presence. As they did, they further tightened their grip to the point of which, if the same pressure were to be applied, it would damage the engine block of a HEMI. Some smiled warmly, some looked away, some pretended not to notice me. They all know what I was there for, however. They knew that I was a vulture, and if one of them lied down, I would be in for the

2:59 a.m., There Seems to Be a Problem:

After recognizing most of the box-graspers as Local Enormous Department Store employees, I calmed down a little. Maybe they were just protecting the goods, making sure they were safe for Consumer G. McBuyerson, who was I. Upon my asking "Are these TVs for sale?" they replied a hearty "yes," to which I was relieved. I intended to claim my rightful property, but was stopped by the fact that the TVs were indeed for sale, but these people were the ones who were buying them. This is where I really started to panic. I began to stutter, my vision became blurred, and I began to shiver from the cold sweat breaking out all over my body. It sounded like it was coming through a tunnel when the assistant manager told me that I could go back to electronics to see if they would sell me the display TV. I fumbled blindly for the rear of the store, to the electronics department, feeling weak from my recent defeat. I asked the clerk if they had any more of the model, and I was informed with a definite "I don't know for sure about that." I knew I was going to have to think straight to get through to her. So, shaking the dizziness from my head, I began my interrogation.

"Do you know if the display is for sale?" Asked I.
"I don't really know about that one. Maybe you should

"I don't really know about that one. Maybe you shoul ask a manager."

Determined, I posed the question, "Do you know where I could find a manager?"

"Um, I'm not sure where one of them are." She was very

I restated my question in another form, hoping the mixup would throw her off. I said, "So, is there somewhere around here I could find a manager?"

"If you wait here, I'm sure one will be by eventually." She shot me down a third time, so, once again I did some quick thinking and had another panic attack. This time I called my girlfriend for backup, but being so late (early?), she was unable to provide anything but moral support over the phone. She became my base of operations. It proved more useful than I could ever imagine.

3:30 a.m., Giving up and Giving In:

I admitted defeat. I crawled to the television display, got down on my knees, and wept. I was nothing. I needed this TV to live, and they weren't letting me have it. I only had a certain amount of money, and I had only enough for either the big sale TV, or some smaller, dinkier version, or my rent. Discussing it with my base of operations, we decided I should purchase a smaller TV and just go home. Being an American, I would obviously have to leave a few hundred soldiers there to upkeep the "law," and I would state that the store was better off without it's TV. I was unenthusiastically selecting a tube to assimilate, when a familiar face came running up. He was one of the people that had been there since one o'clock with a TV in his vice-grips. He was a man among men, having transversed the store and leaving his post to inform me that they had found another TV in the storeroom. I'm not sure of his name, or where he is this day, but to him I say thank you, for endangering your own purchase to give me the best news of my life. We briskly walked to the storefront, where a single gigantic box had joined ranks among its brothers, and was eagerly awaiting my claim. I bounded in slow motion up to the boat, where I could hear cheering and clapping as I gently touched the quivering cardboard. I couldn't see my new TV, but I could tell it was in there. I knew it was in there.

4:00 a.m., One Hour Until Departure

Standing isn't that bad. It's not too great either. Waiting is also not very pleasant. Alone, either are moderately tolerable, but when mixed together, they create an agony much bigger. Only a half an hour of waiting, and my feet were sore from being in the exact same spot, my head was hurting from the fluorescent lights, and my bladder decided it would be a good time to be completely full. The assistant manager, who was watching over us, had made it completely clear that if we left our TV for any reason, the prize was up for grabs. More and more people came into the store. Since we were stationed in the front of the store, many of these newcomers had to pass us by. Those who weren't interested in buying a TV showed interest and got entertainment from our determination. Those who were unfortunate enough to have arrived after me showed obvious annoyance and I could tell they were secretly wishing a UTI on me.

4:30 a.m., A Half Hour Until Departure, More New Arrivals

My leg muscles have completely atrophied by now. I haven't shaved since I arrived here, so my beard is now reaching down past my neel. My ing down past my neck. My eyes have sunk deep into my skull from lack of sleep, and my right hand is permanently fused to the TV box. I'm beginning to have feelings of doubt. "Do I really need this TV?" "Am I just giving into advertising, media, and society, and becoming just a drone to do their bidding?" "Why are my underwear riding so far up, despite the fact I haven't moved in a hour?" There are just a few of the questions running through my mind. As more shoppers poured into the store, more waves of panic and terror washed

THE FIRST NOEL will be portrayed in many churches throughout Garrett County soon, with shepherds, wise men, angels, Marys, and Josephs coming in all shapes and sizes. Pictured here are members of the Bear Creek 4-H Club, who staged a live nativity last year. Great Christmas memories are forged in the minds of little ones who wait all year to wear wings, carry Frankincense, or wield a shepherd's crook. And best wishes to all those brave pageant directors out there who get the kids costumed, rehearsed, and ready for their big night. Merry Christmas, everyone!

breaths, sat down on the floor, stood up again, and tried to calm down.

4:40 a.m., It's go time.

I had just got my heart rate down to that of a hyperactive hummingbird, when I felt the TV box move. I know that I hadn't moved it, because my muscles were now past the point of use, so I carefully cocked my head to the side to try to figure out the problem. I almost screamed. A man was leaning on my box. This was no ordinary man, though. This was a hunter. He had a camouflage cap, Steelers jacket, pants tight so tight that even Jessica Simpson would gag, and the essential muscles needed for dragging multiple carcasses through the woods. Or multiple Volkswagens. This guy scared me, and if that wasn't enough, when I turned around, he tipped his hat. It was like he was saying, "Hi, I'm here to break you into several pieces." I turned around and stared at the front of the store to try to pretend he wasn't there. That's when I heard him say from behind me, "Are you ready to wrestle?" I knew I didn't want these to be the last words I ever heard. I was really hoping for something like, "You can't get a bulldozer going fast enough to make a jump that far! You're out of your mind!" No dice, however. This man was prepared to strip me of my life and take my TV. I wasn't about to let him. I wheeled around, game face on, and was ready to duke it out. He was gone. He had just walked away. That's when I noticed the other man standing next to me.

4:45 a.m., Fifteen Minutes and Counting.

This man had apparently been there for a while. He was showing the same trouble standing as I was, and I saw the glint in his eyes that said, "I wish I wasn't here, but it's essential to my future that I take advantage of these deals." He had a kind face, so I knew he wasn't there to harm me, but he was standing so darn close. He had to have been less than a foot away, which made me very uncomfortable, and he seemed to be inching closer. It was very strange, so I ran it through my databanks a few times. I realized that he wasn't there to shop; he was there to help. He had been sent by the store to make sure I make it though alive. I was ecstatic, though I didn't show it, because I knew he was just doing his job. I had to make sure, though. I didn't want any surprise attacks. I turned and faced him, and open my mouth to address him, when he suddenly turned and stated, "I'm getting a camera." He resumed staring at the camera section, which is what he was doing the entire time, and I turned my focus back to my box. What was I thinking?

5:00 a.m., Morning Rush Hour

By now the entire store is a madhouse. In every department of the store were people camped out, waiting for the employees to remove the plastic wrap standing between them and happiness. Everyone had darting eyes, and were nervously shifting from foot to foot like we were all standing on hot coals, but too proud to admit that. I knew it would be any second that they would cut us loose, and when they did, I was heading straight to a cash register. Oh, but they had a great deal on digital camera memory cards. I needed one of those memory cards! There was no way I could get it though. Well, while I was thinking about that, someone cried, "We can go now!" and we were off like cardboard rockets. I was finally home free! I was cool, I was collect, and I was confident. I even got a little daring, and risked losing it all by letting go of my TV. I released my lifeline for three seconds to reach over the mob and grab a handful of memory cards. I don't know how many, but I don't think it mattered. They were cheap! Well, anyhow, I checked out and paid and made my way out the doors of the store. I was victorious. As I walked, a few admiring bag boys trailed me out to where the van waited to help put my prize into the back, where I could then leave and go home. I found the parking lot to be covered in ice, but no matter - I had my TV. We made our way to the big, white van and opened the rear hatch. Another wave of panic hit me. There was no way that a box this big was going Continued on Page 8

Operation Christmas Child Yields Results In Garrett Co.

A CHRISTMAS SURPRISE - Shoe boxes were filled with an assortment of toys and gifts and delivered to children around the world as part of a gift-giving opportunity called Operation Christmas Child. Over 30 local churches, individuals, and businesses in Garrett County participated to make this year's event successful. Pictured above, Richard and Melodee Hill, Oakland, hold the giftfilled shoe boxes that were filled by employees of The Republican.

"Last year Operation Christmas Child served thousands of churches by making sure that every one of the 6.1 million gift-filled shoe boxes collected were placed in the hands of a needy child in one of over 90 countries around the world," said an OCC spokesperson.

Debbie Welch, local coordinator, was thrilled with the amount of participation this year, according to a local spokesperson. Her goal is to see Garrett County's local number of boxes double for the year 2007.

Welch reminds people to start buying now for next year's boxes. "Keeping an eye out for sales throughout the year helps cut the cost drastically," she said.

Operation Christmas Child is a ministry of Franklin Graham, president of Samaritan's Purse. For more information about OCC, people may call the Pleasant View Baptist Church office at 301-334-8515.

to fit in that van!

5:20 a.m., Again With the Waiting.

Since the box wouldn't fit, the bag boys quickly lost interest and dissipated back into the store. I decided it was time to take action. I walked to one side of the box, pushed it, walked to the other side of the box, looked around, and made my way back to the first side. This didn't actually help me at all, but I thought it looked better to people walking by than smiling embarrassedly and shrugging. This went on for a good ten minutes before I realized if I stayed out in this cold much longer, I was going to die. I was already in a weakened state from all of the happenings in the store, so I couldn't risk it in the cold. I called my friend who (thank every higherbeing that there is) happened to be having sleeping problems at the time. Not that I'm glad that he had trouble sleeping, but it was a tad lucky. He said that he would drag himself out of bed and come down with his father's truck, but he would have to get dressed and stop for gas. I thanked him, and reassured him that if he were not there in five minutes, I'd still let him be in my will, however, he would have to collect earlier than expected.

6:00 a.m., Back Into the Store

He arrived with the truck, and with the help of the bag boys who just happened to be around, we got the enormous box into the bed. When questioned if he had anything to tie the TV down with, he responded by lifting a limp, tangled, dirty yellow rope that looked as if it had its ends distressed by that uncle who could tussle your hair to the point of baldness. When I sarcastically asked, "Is that your rope?" he backfired with, "Nope. 'Fraid Not." I decided there was only one sensible thing to do. Tightening my belt, I began walking back into the store. As I walked, all around me scenes began to happen; scenes from my childhood and teenage years. On one side of me I saw myself in joy as my parents bestowed upon me my brothers old Winnie the Pooh teddy bear. On my other side, was my senior prom, my first kiss, my first motorcycle. I pushed through the visions as I walked into the blinding fluorescent light. I briskly made my way back to automotive, grabbed the coveted ratchet-straps, and headed to the cash register. The lines were fading, as most customers had already finished shopping or died in the confusion. I paid and got the heck out of that place. The whole ordeal was less eventful than I had expected, having been made many times more Continued on Page 55

Quick And Simple Tips For Perfect Holiday Entertaining

As the holiday season approaches, it's time to hang the lights, dust off the china, pull out your favorite recipes and get set to throw the perfect bash.

Although nearly half of Americans report experiencing stress during the holidays, according to a recent Gallup survey, holiday entertaining should be an enjoyable form of self-expression.

Whether you're having the in-laws over for brunch or hosting an elaborate cocktail party with co-workers, entertaining can be simple and fun if you plan ahead and take inventory of your belongings," said Robert Zollweg, creative director for Libbey Inc., a leading provider of

AN OLD-FASHIONED SLEIGH RIDE, followed by the sharing of hot chocolate, is a wonderful winter activity in Garrett County, and once in a while, a person with a striking resemblance to Santa Claus is the sleigh driver, as was the case last year for the town of Kitzmiller's Christmas celebration.

For your next holiday "Everyday household gathering, try one of these simple tips from Libbey:

LIVE NATIVITY PLANNED AT ST. PAUL'S – A live nativity scene will again be staged this year at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland during Christmas week. Mild weather helps make the job a pleasant one for the actors, as pictured here at last year's event, but being in Garrett County, they certainly do run the risk of standing in snow up to their knees. The true nativity, in the town of Bethlehem, surely did not take place amid snowdrifts, but a reenactment on the mountaintop can be a very different story. Good luck to the actors, and thanks for providing a fine visual event!

This Holiday Season, Give A Gift That Will Help Homeless Animals

by Lisa Baker, Garrett County Humane Society

This year why not give a gift that you don't need to go to a mall or online to purchase! Give a gift that will help make life better for a homeless animal here in our county. You may give a donation to one of three organizations: the Garrett County Humane Society, the Garrett County Animal Shelter, or HART (Homeless Animal Rescue and Transport).

You may make the donation in memory of a person or pet, in lieu of a gift to someone, or just give a donation to help homeless animals.

Each year over 1,000 animals are brought into the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Your donation may provide extra treats, medicine, or other items that help them get adopted.

The Humane Society provides spay/neuter vouchers to hundreds of county residents each year, plus it receives and responds to neglect calls and helps transport animals to rescue.

HART has helped find homes for hundreds of shelter animals each year by transporting them to various rescues in the tri-state area. Many of the pets probably would have been put to sleep because there are so many and not enough room at the shelter to keep them all for long periods of time.

Please make your check to Society and earmark it for the organization of your choice. on Wampler.

Please include a note that states the amount given, who the gift is from, and the name and address of the person who should receive the gift card. Send the check and note to Ellen Green, 1124 Mary Drive, Oakland, MD

Saving Now For A Happy Holiday Later

The weather is turning cooler and holiday decorations are starting to appear in stores. The signs are everywhere: The holiday season is under way. No matter the size of your gift list, you still have time to save for those holiday bills.

"There's plenty of time to start saving now for holiday gifts," said Dr. Kylene Quinn, chair of the School of Business at Argosy University/Seattle. "The old adage that a penny saved is a penny earned is absolutely true, and by starting now, people will be amazed at the amount of money they can save without inconveniencing themselves."

Dr. Quinn said the strategy is simple: Be aware of where your money goes. If you're on the lookout for good deals all year round, you can bank those savings, building a substantial holiday nest egg. She suggests the following tips:

•Open a dedicated savings account at your bank - With many employers offering direct deposit, it's easy to build up that account without taking money out of your wallet. And the money earns inter-

•Contact your credit card company - Some offer discounts through special promotional or rewards programs. Enrolling is often free, and the savings can be substantial. Keep track of the savings, and deposit an equal amount into your holiday account.

•Take advantage of coupons, mail-in rebates, and discount cards - Coupons, rebates and in-store promotions for discount-card holders are effective ways of saving money. After a shopping trip, set aside cash equal to the amount you saved. And as rebate checks arrive, deposit them - along with your coupon savings - directly into your savings account.

Bird Feeding Fun Without The Waste

It has happened to almost everyone who feeds outdoor pets (especially birds). You fill up the feeder, and the next day you're thrilled to see that almost all of the food is gone. Then you see it: a pile of uneaten bird food under your feeder. Sometimes it even starts to grow into a bizarre little garden born of bird food leftovers.

Take heart! New "clean feeding" outdoor pet foods have become a reality, and more and more bird lovers (second only to gardening, premium products that miniaround the world are rejoicing at the lack of waste below their feeders. In fact, some of these new recipes are so clean that homeowners are putting their feeders on or near their outdoor living spaces, such as decks, porches and patios.

In the past, this would have been a mess, with uneaten shells, seeds and hulls scattered all around your grill and patio furniture. Fortunately, those days are gone. A deck with a seed mess is no longer an excuse not to enjoy feeding birds, the #2 hobby in the United States according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service).

GREAT GIFTS! - Oakland -Mon-Sat, 10-5 304-334-6580

This new breed of clean feeding mixes succeeds by taking out "fillers." These ingredients (most common in bargain or economy blends) are used to increase the volume and weight of mixes. You may feel like you are buying a large bag of bird food, but unless you are careful, much of it may be filler.

Birds hate filler. They simply throw it out of their way as they strive to get to the real seeds, such as sunflowers, sunflower chips, nuts, and berries. That's why you get filler all over your garden, lawn, deck, porch or patio. It's a bird's way of telling you, "I don't want it - you take it." In addition, if a bird finds your feeders packed with filler each time it checks, it will soon take you off its list of preferred buffets.

When you are looking for outdoor pet food, try to get mize ingredients such as millet, milo, and cracked corn, three of the more common kinds of filler. If you stick to foods with ingredients that birds love, such as fruits, nuts and seeds (such as nyjer and sunflower), you'll better serve the feathered visitors that come to your yard.

Clean feeding mixes take this one step further, virtually eliminating waste. Since birds will consume 100 percent of the ingredients that clean feeding mixes include, the only leftovers are the rare bits and pieces that fall from beaks as happy diners dig in. An advanced blend of fine sunflower kernels, peanuts, pistachios, pumpkin seeds and more, this mix attracts a huge variety of songbirds without leaving any of their feeding mess behind.

This news should be exciting for everyone who has wanted to watch birds feed up close, but has always feared the untidy consequences. Now, those who love their outdoor spaces can share them with the outdoor pets they love.

Add a feeder to your deck, porch or patio without having to sweep every day. Fill your feeders and watch as birds fill your outdoor living area, but unwanted "weed gardens" do not. Take your hobby to the next level. Become an enthusiast without giving up your love of a neat yard or patio.

Ask your local lawn and garden center about clean feeding outdoor pet foods (they are sometimes called zero-waste mixes). Once you start to enjoy your outdoor pets without the mess, you may find yourself spending more time with your hobby. At the very least, you'll find yourself spending much less time cleaning up after the outdoor visitors you try to

Holiday Banquet Basics Made Easy

Gone are the days of scanning the barnyard for the fattest fowl on the farm. Nowadays, turkeys come frozen, thawed, pre-cooked, organic, smoked, fried, glazed, sliced and diced. Despite the luxuries today, the pressure's still on to plan ahead for a memorable, home-cooked holiday feast. Getting started, you'll want to make sure to have these essentials on hand:

Roaster

Need a roaster? Porcelain-

on-steel or "Graniteware" roasters are easy to find, generally inexpensive and conduct heat evenly. Tests have shown these dark roasters help evenly brown your bird. As an added benefit, the roaster can be used again and again for many other meats. Check the measurement of your oven cavity so you can be sure the roaster will fit.

Cooking Thermometer

This is an inexpensive necessity to ensure everyone enjoys the meal and stays healthy. Most experts recommend serving the turkey after it reaches an internal temperature of 170° F.

Baster

Basters can be found just about anywhere, though you'll need to look for one with a large bulb that will hold a large amount of fluids. A large, heavy-duty baster will help you save time, retain moisture and lock in the best flavors.

Serving Platter

There's no right choice for a serving platter other than personal choice. Platters come in many shapes, sizes and designs. Your platter, whether square, oval or round should be large enough to hold the turkey with some wiggle room and a sloped edge to hold already-sliced servings. Consider an oven-safe platter so that leftovers can be reheated easily.

Carving Knife

While knives are common in the kitchen, you'll need one that will work best with turkey. Serrated knives tear the meat, for example. An 8-to 10-inch carving knife with a thin, flexible blade will result in the most evenly cut slices.

Carving Board

Whether the cutting board is wood, plastic or other surface, make sure it has a deep gully around the board to catch juices. A textured cutting surface will keep meats from slipping as you cut.

Sauce Pan

"What, no gravy?" You'll need a sauce pan to take full advantage of all the tasty drippings from your fancy fowl. Make sure the lid fits properly to prevent too much pressure from forming inside a too-tight seal.

Gravy Boat All aboard! You'll show your attention to detail by placing a gravy boat and saucer on your finely set table. It doesn't even need to look like a boat. You can improvise, too, with a small or medium pitcher that has an easy-pour spout.

Even if you're not planning a big holiday meal, these kitchen tools make great gifts for those who do the cooking! Ask your hosts if they need any of these items and you'll likely be on next year's guest list, too!

Curran Advises Consumers To Read Fine Print

The holiday season is upon us and shopping for gifts can be stressful. What do you get for that person who has everything? Gift cards are an increasingly popular gift-giving option that can please both the giftgiver and the recipient. But Maryland Attorney General J. SO MANY LITTLE MIRACLES by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q. Are there really any such things as miracles? Aren't they scientifically impossible?

Do you remember what happened last March 31 in Friendsville?

That was the day that a school bus full of children lost its brakes on the steep downhill on Rt. 42 going north into Friendsville, plowed into the back of a huge truck, and the whole thing came to rest with zero fatalities and generally minor injuries. Most Garrett County citizens have forgotten all about the incident, because the school children were from West Virginia (nearby Tucker County) and the truck driver from Pennsylvania.

The Republican of April 6 carried pictures and a description of the crash, along with interview comments by some of those involved. The photo caption began "This Friendsville road crash could have been a lot worse..." The article ended with this sentence: [Pam] Kisamore [one of the chaperones on the tripl summed up the events of the few seconds leading up to the crash and the hours that followed in her observation, "There were so many little miracles."

Elsewhere in the article a parent is quoted, "So many different things if the bus did this or this or this and we would have had casualties." Another chaperone said, "The trucker was basically in the wrong place at the right time for us." The bus driver, Shirley Robinson, foreseeing a crash coming, had the presence of mind to put the right front of the bus into the truck, so the stairwell (where nobody sits) would absorb most of the impact. The combined bus-trailer assembly then jack-came to rest. Okay, let's take a look at all this. This IS a science column, isn't there? Yeah, right.

Brakes dissipate energy through friction, and collisions involve a transfer of momentum, and blah blah blah. Professional investigators study details like these all the time and conclude that the fatalities were due to etc. etc., and some insurance company forks over a lot of money and the survivors go home. One thing: This time, everybody survived! A school bus full of children lost its brakes on a steep downhill and everybody survived! Perhaps instead we should take a look at the line "so many little miracles."

Among theologians, the technical definition of a miracle is: an event where God suspends the laws of nature. Such events are definitely very rare. Theologians and many scientists agree that God prefers to act through the laws of nature, so as to make it unnecessary to suspend them. I tend to think of it this way: God is happy to do you a favor, but He doesn't like to get caught at it.

Part of the deal with mankind having free will is that God won't force you to believe, won't smack you in the face with an event so spectacular that you have no way out. For too many people, especially those who know some part of science, the "scientific explanation" provides that way out. But those who can see the "little miracles" that God works every day don't need a way out.

The easiest way for God to avert a disaster is to move a few electrons around and put a thought into somebody's head: "Hey, bus driver! Too bad you got the red light at Mosser Road, but since there are kids on board, pause and wait a few more seconds before turning left off 219 onto 42." - thus allowing the just-unloaded truck to be on route 42 a little bit ahead. Is that the way it happened? How would I know? I just made up that scenario, to put the truck "...in the wrong place at the right time for us." Was that the miracle? Well, having that sort of thing take place is much less spectacular than the ancient Greek image of Zeus hurling a thunderbolt - but just as effective.

Where did the bus driver get the idea to ram the right front corner of the bus into the truck? Was she a mechanical engineer, or part of an Indy pit crew? Hardly. Nevertheless, the thought was there in her brain when it needed to be. How did it get there? How valuable is a "scientific explanation" for that?

This year, at Thanksgiving and Christmas, there are a lot of celebrating families who did not lose a loved one this year. All across the nation, millions of near-misses that never happened are quickly forgotten by everyone over time. When something like this bus crash comes along, perhaps it holds our attention a little longer. In Garrett County this Christmas, we can feel that we were specially privileged to be the site where "so many little miracles" came all bundled up in a single gift nackage

Patriotic Santas Can Send Treats To The Troops

Just because our soldiers are thousands of miles away from home this holiday season, doesn't mean you can't reach out and touch them with some holiday cheer.

A holiday feast, a bright red stocking filled with cookies, candies and treats and a heartwarming message from home are on every soldier's holiday wish list. And simply knowing we're thinking of them during the holidays also can be a supportive gift.

"There's nothing like a holiday care package to make a homesick soldier smile," said Deborah Crane, president of Treats for Troops, a web site that makes it safe and simple for anyone to send packages and messages of support to soldiers anywhere in the world.

In addition to the usual holiday sweets and geodies, Treats for Troops (www.treatsfortroops.com) even makes it possible for you to send soldiers turkey feasts with all the trimmings, festive cookies and candies, special gifts and even an inflatable Christmas tree.

Don't know anyone in the service? It's easy for anyone to send a package to one of the thousands of soldiers registered with the web site's Foster-A-Soldier Program. Patriotic Santas select a soldier to sponsor by branch of service, home state, gender or area of deployment.

And, because Treats for Troops learned early on that share and share alike is the rule for service members, the web site offers the opportunity to send packages that have more than enough treats to go around.

Gifts can be sent to individuals or entire units. Treats for Troops' Group Gift Department is especially helpful for groups that want to make supporting the troops a holiday project. You provide the budget, and the company takes care of everything else including suggesting gifts, helping to create a personal or company message, and making sure you get the thank-you notes sent by the soldiers who received your package.

"It was a great experience," said Philip Montes, who coordinated a team effort for the employees of Saxon Capital in Fort Worth,

"Everyone really Texas. loved doing it. It was a very personal way to help."

In addition to themed packages, Treats for Troops' on-line store offers hundreds of items troops have asked for. There are phone cards, toiletries, gadgets, and games. And necessities like zip-lock bags, batteries, and chocolate chip cookies and

"Words cannot thank you for the package you sent. It is good to know we're not forgotten," wrote one soldier to his sponsor. A woman in the Marines responded to one care holiday care package, writing, "When I received your package it reminded me that we fight for someone. My unit was fighting for your freedom. I am honored you recognized me."

New Trend Has Holiday Shoppers Playing Mind Games

Holiday shopping may require a thinking cap this year as the popularity of mind games - particularly word games - is soaring.

With hit movies and Broadway musicals chronicling everything from spelling bees to crossword puzzle tournaments, word-related games are enjoying a high profile in American pop culture. Venerable board games such as Scrabble and Boggle are experiencing a rebirth online. Even top-selling dictionary publisher Merriam-Webster has gotten into the act, releasing Word Sweep, the first board game to feature the company's official dictionary definitions.

Reyne Rice, toy trends specialist for the Toy Industry Association, says that consumer interest in mindbuilding word games - once the quiet pastime of brainy bookworms - is indeed a growing trend, especially among families who play games together.

GREAT GIFTS! 206 E Alder St. - Oakland -Mon-Sat, 10-5 304-334-6580

"Games are a way to keep us sharp and our minds active, like mental gymnastics," said Rice. "By challenging each other and learning new skills with mind and word games, families are creating a lifelong love of learning, in a fun and entertaining way."

Rice noted that recent consumer interest in mind puzzles and word games has helped boost family board NPD Group.

A quick scan of retail shelves demonstrates the trend. In addition to omnipresent Sudoku and crossword puzzle books, new games including Nerdy Wordy by Briarpatch, Wordrop by Rumba Games and LetterFlip by Out of the Box have arrived. Christmas Tree Care Tips, Facts

Tree maintenance

Care for your tree as carefully as care for fresh-cut flowers.

Place the tree in a bucket of water out of the sun and wind until you're ready to install and decorate it.

Make a fresh cut - a half inch or so - from the tree's bottom before putting in a water-holding stand. Check water supply daily.

Recycling

Christmas trees can be recycled and used for chipping/mulch, fish habitat in waterways, and lake and river shoreline stabilization.

Facts

Christmas trees are grown intentionally for your enjoyment, with about 98 percent of trees sold each holiday season grown on farms as a crop.

Christmas trees are often grown on land unsuitable for other farm crops. By using such fields, tree farmers help to control soil erosion and provide wildlife habitats.

Some 100,000 people are employed by the Christmas tree industry in the U.S.

One acre of Christmas trees produces the daily oxygen requirement of 18 people. During photosynthesis, trees absorb carbon dioxide and emit oxygen. For every tree harvested, up to three seedlings are planted in its place.

•In 1531, the first retail Christmas tree lots appear in German cities.

shapes, small books, and lace, as well as food.

•In the 18th century, Christmas trees are decorated with lighted candles.

•In 1777, the tradition of the Christmas tree is brought to Colonial America by Hessian troops fighting for Britain in the Revolutionary War.

•In 1804, U.S. soldiers stationed at Fort Dearborn (now Chicago) bring evergreen trees into their barracks at Christmas. In 1882, Charles Minnegrode introduces the custom of a decorated Christmas tree in Williamsburg, •In 1851, Mark Carr opens a retail Christmas tree lot in New York City, the first in the United States.

•In 1856, Franklin Pierce, the 14th U.S. president, brings the first Christmas tree into the White House.

•In 1923, President Calvin Coolidge starts the National Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony now held every year on the White House

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

It's three days before Christmas. You're checking your list. Uh oh, you think. Uncle Bob has been missed.

And Aunt Molly, cousin Cindy, and your new stepdad, Dale. There's nothing wrapped for them here, and it's making you wail, "What can I get them that won't make them

May I make a suggestion? Books make a great gift. They're •By 1600s, Christmas trees easy to wrap and they're fun; there're no questions. So read on are decorated with ribbon, tin right now for some Christmas suggestions:

The cook on your list will love to see Southern Homecoming Traditions: Recipes and Remembrances by Carolyn Quick Tillery (Citadel Press) beneath the tree. Filled with yummy-sounding African American heritage recipes and lots of pictures, this book will be something she (or he!) will pore through for hours, not just for the dinner ideas, but also for the HBCU memories and mini-biographies inside the cover. Bonus for you: Giving this book will certainly mean you'll get to taste the goodies that spring from its pages!

For the best friend who has everything, how about Slap on a Little Lipstick... You'll Be Fine by Jodi Hills (Tristan Publishing)? This little gift book isn't going to set you back much you tuck a spa gift certificate in between its pages.

If you love to shop for Christmas, why not read about it, too? Service and Style: How the American Department Store Fashioned the Middle Class by Jan Whitaker (St. Martin's Press) is a book filled with pictures, history, and lots of memories. If you recall going on special trips downtown with your mom and having lunch at the fancy department store tea room, you'll love this book. Hint: If you have those memories, Mom will, too, and she'll love a copy of this book of her own.

Your women's history nut will love Shady Ladies by Suzann Ledbetter (Forge). In this book, 17 all-but-forgotten women in history are profiled, including their contributions, their scandals, and their rebellious lives. The chapters are short in this book, but it's long in feminist fascination.

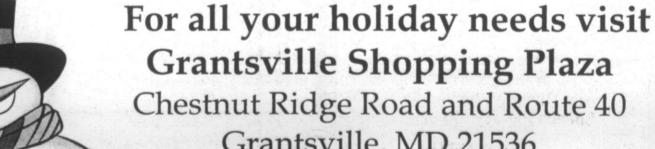

If you can't bear to give another toy this Christmas, look for Peef and the Baby Sister by Tom Hegg, illustrated by Warren Hanson (Waldman House Press). This colorful book will help soothe sibling rivalry, and the drawings will appeal to the imaginations of kids up to age 10 or so. Hint: lots of cuddletime with this cute book.

Are you a Daddy's girl? Then share Love You, Daddy Boy, edited by Karyn McLaughlin Frist (Taylor Trade) with your pops. Filled with reflections from the daughters of famous (and not-so-famous) men, this book is going to make Dad teary-eyed, especially if you include your own "love you" in-

Feel better now? You know what to find for last-minute gifts when you're out of your mind. So take this list, get the car, and head for the mall and finish your shopping.

Simple Projects To Keep Or To Give As Gifts

This time of year, every store in the mall is bursting with holiday-themed items for your home, from decorations for the tree to towels for the powder room. How many times have you looked at something in the stores and thought "I could make that"?

Make this the year that you add some handmade touches to your holiday décor. Your local craft or fabric store is a great place to get ideas as well as the materials you'll need. While you may think you don't have time to be taking on more projects at this busy time of year, consider it "therapy." Working on a craft project provides you with some time to sit, relax and do something you enjoy as an antidote to all the hustle and bustle.

And you don't have to be an expert seamstress to make items that will become cherished family heirlooms. Here are some simple holiday ideas from the experts at

Home for the Holidays, December 14, 2006 ·Christmas stockings are a great project to make for or with kids. You can personalize them for each child by adding special touches like the recipient's name, and decorating the stocking based on their interests - trains, ballet, soccer. Add crystals, fancy trim and more. These stockings will be cherished for years to come.

·Pillowcases and towels also lend themselves to embroidered embellishments. His and hers Mr. & Mrs. Claus pillowcases add a lighthearted touch to a guest room. Towels can be gussied up with monograms or holiday-themed art. Look for festive metallic thread to use for your embroidery to really make it pop.

Using a sewing machine to do the embellishing makes it even quicker and easier. By putting technology to work for you, you'll have time to make gifts as well as add handmade touches to your own home this season.

GAMES AVAILABLE FOR HOLIDAY GIFT BUYING - The Garrett County Humane Society has seven types of Monopoly games available for holiday shoppers. "The games have been a great seller for us, and this year we have three new types: Rodeo-, Safari-, and Dino-opoly," said Lisa Baker, Humane Society president. "These games are not available at Wal-Mart, and if you order one from a catalog or specialty store, you will pay a higher price. The cost from the Humane Society is $24 per game. Your purchase benefits neglected and homeless animals, plus supports our spay/ neuter assistance program. The games make a great gift for any member of the family, and besides being fun, they are educational." Games are available at Pineview Veterinary Hospital, Oakland. Persons may also call Baker to special order a game at 301-387-4425, but they need to allow five days for shipping. Pictured are Humane Society representative Tux holding Cat-opoly and Laurel Baker with Chocolate-opoly. Other games available are Dogopoly and Farm-opoly.

Conquering Holiday Overeating

by Judith Matz, LCSW, and Eliminating "forbidden" Ellen Frankel, LCSW

As the holiday season approaches, we think of celebrations with family and friends, and of food! Whether it is turkey and stuffing, ham, pumpkin pies, potato latkes or Christmas cookies, food is an integral part of the holiday season. Yet for millions of Americans who worry about their weight, anticipating this myriad of delights creates great anxiety.

'How can I go to all of those parties and not overeat?" or "Why do I get through the whole evening without cheating and then find myself overeating at home?" are two of the common concerns expressed by dieters. While the ability to avoid fattening foods often leads to feelings of deprivation, indulging in these forbidden foods usually leads to feelings of guilt and weight gain, which interfere with the joy of the season.

Here are five ways to enjoy eating this holiday season without worry:

1. End the deprivation.

When you tell yourself that you can't have certain foods because they are "too fattening," you set yourself up to overeat those very foods. It is human nature to foods in order to lose weight for the holidays frequently leads to overeating at parties and gatherings. One bite of something off limits is often enough to trigger the feeling that, "Now that I've broken my diet, I might as well have everything." Or, you may control yourself at a party, only to feel you deserve a reward for your "good behavior" when you return home.

Conversely, you may use the New Year as a time to resolve to diet. Therefore, there is a need to eat as much as possible prior to Jan 1 in anticipation of the deprivation that will soon occur.

By incorporating all types of foods into your diet throughout the year, you can avoid the overeating and holiday weight gain that results from deprivation.

2. Become an attuned eater. Attuned eaters use internal, physical cues to tell them when, what, and how much to eat. This way of feeding yourself helps you to tune into hunger and satiation, rather than eating something just because it's there. Becoming an attuned eater allows you to feel in charge of your eating when you are at holiday parties and celebrations.

attuned eating. First, learn to recognize when you are physically hungry. This requires tuning into your stomach and noticing how it feels. Next, identify what your body craves in response to your physical hunger. In order to match your hunger with the food that will satisfy you, have a variety of foods available and withhold judgments about what you are supposed to eat. When you are at a party, try to pick the food(s) that comes closest to what your body craves.

Finally, pay attention to your fullness in order to know how much to eat. If in the mood for it or not. Indue to overeating.

3. Remind yourself that you can have it later.

Who says you can't make your sweet potato time any time you want? If you believe that you cannot have a special holiday food for another whole year, you are likely to have it whether you are really you begin with a sensation of stead, promise yourself that physical hunger, you will be you can make turkey and able to identify a feeling of mashed potatoes any time of satisfaction when you have year, and that special desserts eaten enough. Honoring your can be baked or bought when hunger will keep you eating you desire. Knowing that the right amount for your these foods can be available body and prevent weight gain to you will reduce the need to eat something at a holiday celebration you don't really want at that moment.

Consider asking for the recipe or a doggie bag when you are at a holiday event. This strategy stops the worry that if you don't eat a special

4. Avoid becoming too hungry.

It can be tempting to "save up" your hunger for parties and special events. However, when you go without food for a long period of time, you become ravenous. At this stage of physical hunger, you are likely to eat anything and everything in sight, leading to that out-of-control feeling and weight gain.

Instead, eat in accordance with your physical hunger full. A piece of fruit, some crackers or cookies, or a slice of cheese can help you to respond to your hunger so that you do not walk into the party feeling desperate to eat. Then, you will truly be able to relax and to feed yourself exactly what you need.

5. Stay compassionate with vourself.

Just about everyone overeats sometime, especially during the holiday season. If you yell at yourself for your transgression, you are likely throughout the day. If you to create anxiety, which fuels overeating and weight gain. You are also likely to fall into whatever you want right now because as of tomorrow — or

Keep Your Car Safe During The Holiday Season

As you head out to do your holiday shopping, car theft may be the last thing on your mind. But winter weather doesn't deter car thieves and they definitely don't take a holiday vacation. In fact, just as many thefts occur during October, November, and December as during May, June, and July, according to the FBI.

On average, a vehicle is stolen every 26 seconds in the United States, and you might be surprised to learn that an experienced car thief can steal your car in less than one minute. Locations such as malls and airports, where large numbers of cars are parked for long periods of time, are prime targets for auto thieves.

But you don't have to be a victim. There are a number of common sense precautions you can take to deter car thieves from targeting your •Never leave your car running. This may seem obvious, but in cold weather parts of the country, it is not un-leaving them in the driveway or office parking lot unat-

·You don't want to make it easy for a car thief. Always common for people to start lock your car; approximately cles were unlocked, and nearly 20 percent had their keys in them. Never leave your keys in the ignition, even in your own garage.

·Whenever possible, park in a well-lighted, heavily trafficked area. Fee parking lots are a good choice, as they have attendants on hand and often have video cameras to deter thieves.

•Let thieves know your car has an alarm by displaying a sticker in your window. But don't be complacent. A car alarm will not deter a determined thief, since they know that in a city, people hardly notice car alarms going off. Think about it: How many times have you heard car alarms blaring and ignored it, figuring someone had accidentally brushed against a car or that the owner hit their panic button by mistake?

•Physical deterrents are best. A steering wheel lock like The Club is a highly visible sign to potential thieves that your car is protected. A bright red metal bar with a lock that fits on the steering wheel and prevents it from being turned, The Club is easy to use. It slips on in seconds and can save you hours if not days – of headaches (police reports, insurance claims, loss of transportation and other hassles). The longer it takes to steal a car, the more attention the thief attracts. They know that The Club is virtually impossible to defeat, and will move on to another vehicle that is not so well protected. There's even a model specifically for trucks and SUVs.

•Thieves sometimes use tow trucks to steal cars. To make it harder for them, always use your parking break, and when you park on the street, make sure your tires are turned toward the curb.

The Club makes a great gift this holiday season and lets your loved ones know you're thinking of their safety and well-being.

Empowerment Coach Offers Tips To Avoid Stress, Enjoy Holiday

Balancing work and family is difficult enough on a normal day, but the stress of juggling holiday responsibilities can push anyone to the breaking point. But according to Helen J. Burton, an empowerment and recovery coach, much of the stress is focusing on 'should haves' instead of embracing the moments for what they are.

"Most people are striving for the Currier and Ives Christmas of their childhood, but in reality they're dreading the holidays because they know it won't meet their idealistic view," she explains.

"Take Charge America" Offers Tips To Help Keep Holiday Shopping Spending In-Check

Millions of consumers may find that their open hearts will lead to empty wallets this holiday season.

Mike Sullivan, director of education for Take Charge America, a national nonprofit credit counseling agency, says shoppers don't need to go broke in order to spread some holiday cheer.

"Many Americans have a misconception that the best gifts have to cost a lot of money," he said. "You can show your love and affection without driving yourself further into debt.'

Consumers are expected to spend an average of $791.10 each on holiday merchandise this year, according to the National Retail Federation. Sullivan says shoppers who charge their holiday purchases will ultimately pay much more.

"The interest alone on credit card purchases can become a huge burden," he said. "I've seen many people get credit-card-statementshock when they examine just how much money they've accumulated in interest - all money they originally hadn't planned to spend."

2. Keep the Plastic at Home - If carrying your credit card presents too much of a temptation to overspend, leave it home. If you do bring your card, charge only gifts you can afford to pay off when the statement arrives. Just remember that you will be charged interest on any balance you can't pay off immediately.

3. Gifts from the Heart -A thoughtful gift doesn't have to empty your wallet. Loved ones are often touched more from gifts of the heart. Create a scrapbook, recipe collection, or CD of special songs. You can also volunteer your time helping those less fortunate in honor of someone you love.

Annual Candlelight Service Planned At St. Paul's UMC

St. Paul's United Methodist Church, located at 318 E. Oak Street in Oakland, will host its annual Christmas candlelight service on Sunday, Dec. 17, at 5 p.m.

The choir of St. Paul's, under the direction of Muriel R. Franc, will present sacred Christmas music of different eras, including the present. Scripture passages will be read by Rev. Truett Rogers, as has always been the tradition, Franc noted.

The service will conclude with all present singing "Silent Night" as candles are lit "and held aloft to honor the newborn savior," Franc

All are welcome to attend the service.

Overeating

Continued from Page 37 next week or January 1 you will have to restrict your eating. This attitude will increase your sense of guilt and feeling out of control, and guarantees that you will eat more food than your body needs.

Instead, remain gentle with yourself. Attuned eaters notice when they feel too full. and then naturally wait for their next sign of physical hunger to eat again. Acknowledge the discomfort you feel from overeating, and promise yourself that you will do your best to wait for the next cue of internal hunger to let you know that it is time to eat again.

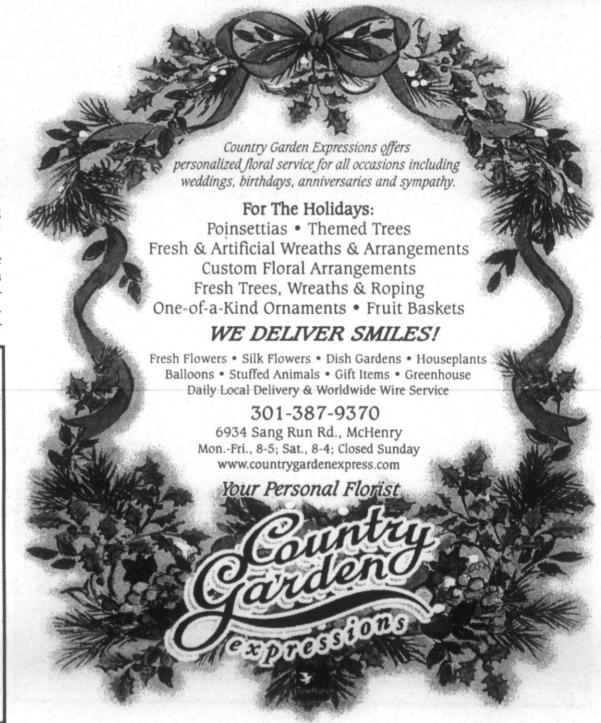

Focus on family and friends, rather than on food. Although food is an integral part of holiday events, the real purpose of getting together is to celebrate with people who are important to you. Eat for satiation and pleasure, and then turn your attention to connecting with others, rather than continuing to eat. By learning to feel in charge of your eating, you can break the diet/binge cycle and prevent weight gain from holiday overeating. Instead, as you greet the New Year, enjoy the sense of calm and hope that comes with this healthy attitude toward eating and weight.

John Baumann, president of The Swiss Colony, hears stories every year from people who are trying to find "just the right gift" for those hard-togift people in their lives.

"It's wonderful to be able to surprise someone with a seasonal treat," said Baumann. "Holidays provide the perfect opportunity to express our appreciation to those special friends and loved ones." And he should know. For 80 years, The Swiss Colony has been helping to bring families and friends together by delivering their holiday greetings through food gifts by mail.

So make it easy on yourself this holiday season. Pull up a comfortable chair. Get out your list. Gather up your catalogs - or hop online and start browsing. Delight someone with a special gift by mail and leave the shipping to somebody else. Some catalog companies offer extras like gift packaging, personalized holiday greetings and "your time" delivery, so you can shop early and designate delivery at a later date. Some even send you a reminder, to help you get started, of what you sent and

'Tis The Season To Switch

by Grace-Marie Turner

It's that time of year again, when gift-giving, good food, and family get-togethers are on all our minds. But amidst the hustle and bustle of holiday activities, seniors enrolled in the new Medicare prescription drug plans need to be thinking about whether they want to stay with their current plan. For those interested in making a switch, now is the time.

It's also the time for seniors who didn't pick a Medicare drug plan before last May's cut-off date to enroll. Every month that seniors delay costs them an additional 1% in premiums.

Between Nov. 15 and Dec. 31 every year, Medicare scription drug coverage and switch or sign up for the first time. (Those with retiree coverage through their former employers generally don't need to do anything if their employer offers a qualifying Part D plan.)

This yearly period allows seniors to take advantage of the many competing offerings provided under Medicare's drug plan and pick the one that's best for them.

The open-enrollment period also keeps plan providers on their toes. Knowing that beneficiaries have the option to switch to a competitor means that insurers are always trying to come up with better plans - which results in lower prices and a broader array of choices.

ers is what makes Medicare Part D so different from other government programs. By leveraging the power of private-sector competition, Medicare Part D provides more drugs than the frequently vaunted programs in Europe or Canada. Part D is also vastly superior to the drug benefit program run by the Department of Veterans Affairs, which uses a more traditional government-run model.

Almost 90 percent of all prescription medications on the market are currently available through Part D.

That's in sharp contrast to other healthcare systems across the world. In France, for example, the government recently asked doctors to prescribe fewer medicines to cut costs. In Germany, many of the most-innovative drugs aren't reimbursable. And even in the United States, the Department of Veterans Affairs refuses to cover many of the newest, most-effective pharmaceuticals unless other drugs are first tried.

When one compares any of these programs to Part D, there's simply no compari-

That's probably why most seniors are pleased with their current Part D plans. Earlier this year, the Kaiser Family Foundation reported that more than eight in 10 seniors enrolled in the service are satisfied with the plan they picked; that their initial experiences have been positive; and three out of four would pick the same plan again.

In fact, the drug benefit is actually offering more and better choices than anyone anticipated when Congress crafted the program. Although the government estimated that seniors would pay $37 a month in premiums for their Medicare drug coverage, the average premium has turned out to be much lower - just $25 a month.

These choices have resulted in some great deals for healthcare consumers. Some prescription drug plans, for example, cost as little as $5 a

Many plans are providing drug coverage in the infamous "donut hole" - the gap in the standard plan where insurance coverage is interrupted between moderate and high drug expenses. As a result, the majority of America's seniors - 72 percent now have some drug coverage in the donut hole.

Medicare Part D's success owes much to the many options it provides to beneficiaries. This holiday season, seniors who aren't fully satisfied with their coverage should take advantage of those options by switching to the plan that's best for them. And for those who haven't signed up yet, this is the time.

Here are some suggestions from the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA):

·Smoke alarms. If a fire occurs, having a smoke alarm cuts the chance of dying nearly in half. Consider smoke alarms for everyone on your list. Smoke alarms for people who are deaf or hard of hearing include strobe lights, high decibels and/or vibration. All smoke alarms should be replaced after 10 years.

Beware Of Phony Charities This Time Of Year

This is the time of year when more Americans begin to make charitable donations or resolve to give more to charity. Consumers are being advised nationwide to be careful when donating to charitable organizations, especially those groups about which they know little.

Attorneys General in many states are offering tips on how to select a worthy charity and how to go about making your contribution carefully.

Protect Your Property From Holiday Heists

The winter holiday season is traditionally a time of giving and receiving. Unfortunately, it can also be a season for increased theft and burglary. Keep your presents under the tree and out of the wrong hands this holiday season by following several pointers from insurance experts Jonathan Farris of General Casualty and John Blodnick of Unigard.

Shop Wisely

Not everyone is shopping for that perfect gift for little Billy. Some shoppers may be in the market for a new identity - yours. Guard information carefully that could be used to steal your identity, such as credit cards numbers, bank account PINs and other personal information like your Social Security or driver's license number.

To keep personal identification information safe, Blodnick recommends:

·When making purchases shield credit cards and PINs from "shoulder surfers" who memorize and steal the num-

•Keep receipts in your wallet or purse instead of shopping bags. Tear or shred documents containing account numbers before throwing them away.

·If shopping online, buy from reputable and secure web sites only. If the site is secure, the address should begin with "https."

·Watch your bank and credit card accounts carefully for suspicious activity and report it to the respective financial institutions.

Your identity isn't the only thing at risk while shopping. If buying many gifts at once, combine purchases into one or two bags so you're a less appealing target for thieves. Keep purchases in your vehicle's trunk or covered in the back seat instead of in sight where they can tempt burglars. Be sure to lock your car at all times.

Out of Sight, Out of Mind Increased travel and spending over the holidays can also mean an increase in theft and burglaries. To combat this, keep unwrapped gifts out of the sight of both curious family members and thieves by storing them in a closet or cabinet. After opening gifts don't

Do you find yourself more stressed out during the holiday season? According to a recent online survey conducted by the National Headache Foundation (NHF), 52% of respondents stated that during the holiday season the frequency or severity of their headache increases. In fact, 64% of respondents have changed their holiday plans due to their headaches.

There are a number of situations that can exacerbate one's headache condition, and, according to the NHF online survey, the three most prevalent triggers include stress due to added responsibilities (61%), alterations in sleep/wake cycle (56%) and being in smoke or perfumed filled rooms (47%).

· Don't disrupt your normal sleeping and waking patterns. Those late-night parties can also lead to headaches by tempting you to stay up past your bedtime and wake up later than usual. Try to go to sleep and awaken the same time every day. To minimize this potential trigger, 44% of survey respondents said that they maintain a regular sleep/wake cycle.

· Be aware of smoke- and perfume-filled rooms. Both are typical celebration environments that can trigger headaches. If possible, get some fresh air or find an area that is relatively smoke- and perfume-free. Forty-three percent of those who took the survey try to avoid an environment with olfactory trig-

· If you choose to drink alcohol, do so in moderation. Try to sip your drink slowly. Mixed drinks containing fruit or vegetable juices will probably have less negative effect than straight alcohol. Alternate nonalcoholic beverages such as soda or water. Avoid red wine, which contains tyramine, a naturally occurring amino acid known to trigger headaches. Try a glass of white wine instead. Fortyfour percent of survey respondents noted that they watch with they drink to eliminate headache triggers.

· Don't skip meals. An empty stomach could spur a headache; therefore, if you're unable to follow your normal eating schedule, be sure to Continued on Page 51

FREE STATE BAKE STUFFED ROCKFISH

14-5 pound rockfish, dressed

1 Tbsp. lemon juice

2 cups Skipjack Oyster Dressing

salt and pepper

melting fat or oil, for basting

Wash and dry fish thoroughly. Sprinkle inside cavity with salt, pepper, and lemon juice. Put in shallow, foil-lined baking pan. Stuff cavity of fish loosely with dressing, and secure edges. Baste liberally with fat or oil. Bake at 350 °F, basting frequently, until fish flakes easily when tested with fork, 45 to 60 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SKIPJACK OYSTER DRESSING

1 large stalk celery

1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine or butter ½ tsp. mace

½ tsp. tarragon ½ tsp. lemon juice

8 slices day-old bread, cubed

1 medium onion 1 tsp. salt

1/2 tsp. lemon and pepper seasoning 1/2 tsp. poultry seasoning

1 pint shucked Maryland oysters, with liquor

Finely chop celery and onions. Saute in margarine or butter until tender, Mix in seasonings. Add oysters with liquor and simmer until edges of oysters just begin to curl. Remove from heat and gently mix in bread cubes. Adjust moistness with water, as desired. Makes about 4 cups dressing.

CRAB STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 pound Maryland backfin crab meat

1/3 cup mayonnaise

1 egg

2 Tbsp. milk 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

1 tsp. dry mustard

1/2 tsp. celery salt 1/4 tsp. pepper

1 tsp. paprika

pinch of ginger

2 Tbsp. cracker meal

24 fresh mushrooms (about 2 to 3 inches in diameter)

1 cup mayonnaise

1 tsp. seafood seasoning

2 dashes liquid hot pepper paprika, for sprinkling

Remove cartilage from crab meat, being careful not to break crab lumps. Place crab meat in large bowl and set aside. In small bowl mix mayonnaise, egg, milk, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, celery salt, pepper, paprika, and ginger. Pour sauce over crab meat and mix gently, but thoroughly. Carefully mix in cracker meal. Wash and remove stems from mushrooms. Place mushrooms in a baking pan stem side up and fill each mushroom with about 2 tablespoons crab

Humanitarian Organizations Always Need Aid

Disasters often shock us from our daily routine and give us pause to sympathize with survivors in a part of the world usually far from our consciousness. We simply can't ignore the suddenness and tragedy of an event like the Indian Ocean Tsunami or Hurricane Katrina. Indeed, every time we look at the television screen or pick up a newspaper, we see the bad news - and a part of us grieves with families who have lost so much.

But when the headlines fade, does the plight of those families also fade from our thoughts?

Emergency response speeding relief to families in urgent need after a disaster is just one part of the work that humanitarian organizations do around the world. Every day, thousands of caring, committed field workers are in some of the world's remote and challenging areas helping children and families who are struggling with hunger, lack of opportunity and poor health conditions.

Mercy Corps, based in Portland, Ore., is one of those organizations. Its 2,000 staff members operate innovative programs in more than 40 countries - from Afghanistan to Zimbabwe. At any hour on any given day, the organization's field workers are busy helping courageous, hard-working people emerge from dire poverty, deplorable living conditions and oppressive societies.

In 2005, Mercy Corps helped more than 10 million people around the world. Schools were opened, gardens planted, houses rebuilt and lives saved.

That kind of ongoing work - and readiness for the next emergency - requires tremendous commitment and resources. Organizations like Mercy Corps depend greatly on the awareness and generosity of their supporters.

In order to meet the ongoing needs of families around the world, Mercy Corps has launched three groundbreaking monthly giving programs: Give for Kids, Heroes Against Hunger, and Partners in Mercy. These programs present caring individuals with an everyday way to support the programs that interest and move them.

These programs not only elementary school students. offer a specific cause to support, but also allow donors to control the level of their donation at all times. In addition, monthly giving donors receive exclusive, in-depth stories about the Mercy Corps programs they're giving to.

The various levels of giving fund specific activities such as:

•$31 a month supplies 15 children with a sustainable source of clean drinking wa-

The annual House of Hope Christmas Food Drive will be held Saturday, Dec. 16, from 9 a.m. to noon in front of Proudfoot's Pharmacy, Second Street, Oakland.

The food drive will be broadcast live on WKHJ. Perishable and non-perishable goods or monetary donations may be dropped off at the above location between volunteers to help the drive. the aforementioned hours.

The food drive for House of Hope, a non-denominational, non-profit organization, was started by Chuck Nolan, Deer Park, 28 years ago. "My daughter is 28 years old. When she was born, I was so grateful that I wanted to give back to the community. I formed the House of Hope food drive as a way of expressing my gratitude to God," said Nolan.

Nolan said that students who need service learning hours may show up (with their papers that validate their service hours from school) at Proudfoot's to earn credits while they work as

With Family, Not The Hospital Staff

It seems the holidays keep coming earlier and earlier every year, thanks in large part to retailers. Stores are already stocked with merchandise and decorations to tempt buyers into starting their holiday shopping immediately. And with all the pressures of buying the hottest toy or gadget, it's easy to get swept away. But before you head to the mall or go online, remember to make sure that the gift you purchase will be a safe one. Unfortunately, thousands of children are injured every year by toys. In 2005, the Consumer Product Safety Commission estimated that 202,300 children were treated in the emergency room for toy-related injuries. And, 94,000 of those injuries were to the face and head, including the eyes. Eye injuries consisted of lacerations, abrasions, and foreign bodies.

Air, BB, and Spring guns accounted for a large portion of the documented injuries to children's eyes. Any toys that shoot projectiles are always dangerous. Even common products such as pens, pencils, crayons, and other art supplies were involved in many accidents.

"It's so important to make sure that every toy a child plays with is age appropriate," said Tim Gresham, president and CEO of Prevent Blindness Mid-Atlantic. "Ninety percent of all eye injuries are preventable, but we have to closely monitor kids to ensure their safety."

Prevent Blindness Mid-Atlantic has declared December as Safe Toys and Gifts Month and is urging all toy buyers to read the labels and pay attention to what their children are playing with. The group suggests the following tips to help make this holiday season a safe one for children:

 Avoid toys that shoot or include parts that fly off.Slingshots and even water guns are dangerous because they invite children to target other kids. BB guns should not even be considered toys.

·Inspect toys for sturdiness. Your child's toys should be durable with no sharp edges or points. The toys should also withstand impact. ·Look for the letters

Ask for identification if you are approached in person. Many states require paid fundraisers to identify themselves as such and to name the charity for which they are soliciting.

If you have any doubts about a charity, check with your local state government you can usually check with the Attorney General's office or the Secretary of State - to ensure it is registered as a non-profit.

You can also check out a charity by contacting the Better Business Bureau's Wise Giving Alliance online at www.give.org or by phone at 703-276-0100.

If you believe you have been a victim of fraud, be sure to contact your local Attorney General's office to file a complaint.

powerful from my last encounter. I headed back to the truck and we tied down the TV. As I got into the van to drive off, I gave the Local Enormous Department Store one last salute as I headed out of the parking lot.

The Aftermath

When I tell the story to people, they ask if it was worth it. I say to them, "being born was hard, and that was worth it." So, having been enlightened, they walk off scratching their heads in a gesture that can mean nothing more than I made their brains larger. Before this story concludes I need to acknowledge a few people. First, my girlfriend, for being my support and base of operations, my parents, who let me use the van, and my friend who came in the very early morning on his white Chevrolet steed to save me from certain frozen death. I would also like to thank the employees of the Local Enormous Department Store for being generally tolerant, especially the ones who shared this experience with me and helped save the last TV for me.

For those of you wondering, the TV is great. It almost completely fills up the entire living room in my little apartment. I have the thing plugged in tight and, on occasion, I have even looked at it with both eyes. I am currently afraid to touch it, for fear I will damage it and have to go through the terrors of a TV repair shop. I have not turned it on yet, but I'm sure the high-definition widescreen display is clearer than diamonds. Maybe one of these days I'll turn it on, and just lay back and bask in the warm glow of a test pattern. I don't get television service at my apartment, but I sure got a great deal! The contestants were selected on their unique qualities, as well as grade point average, extracurricular involvement, and a brief essay on why they would like to be the 2006 Snowflake Queen.

Ross thanked the young women for their willingness to represent the town of Oakland during the Christmas season. The Snow Queen and Princesses rode in the horse-drawn carriage provided by Pleasant Valley Dream Rides during the parade. Santa arrived at the end of the parade on top of an Oakland fire truck.

"Attendance at Christmas on Main Street was a great tribute to Oakland for such a cold night," said Ross. "Red, was the only one who seemed to be warm."

Children waited patiently in line outside the 1884 B&O Railroad Station to see Santa, despite the wind and cold. Saturday, Santa was again at the Train Station. He was joined by the reindeer on Alder Street. Visitors also could enjoy the horse-drawn carriage rides and specials offered by downtown businesses.

Sheriff Berkebile Reports On Mail, Internet Scams

Garrett County's new sheriff, Gary Berkebile, presented his first update report to the county commissioners on Tuesday. The sheriff's main topic of discussion was sweepstakes and Internet scams.

Berkebile noted that his office has issued numerous warnings through the media over the years about various types of con games, but wanted to remind residents, once again, to be cautious about giving out financial and personal information.

"Since this is Christmas," he said, "people may be looking for extra money and be more susceptible to scams."

As an example, the sheriff showed the commissioners a letter recently mailed to a local resident claiming that he had won $51,000 in a sweepstakes. Enclosed was a "check" to "cover part of the processing fee" that the resident needed pay in order to claim his "prize."

The main goal of the letter writer, however, was to ing out his financial information. According to the vice, legitimate sweepstakes real contests do not ask for numbers.

She was brought in to the Garrett County Animal Shelter along with several pupples by her owner. Also available for adoption is a female beagle mix, pictured at center. "She apparently didn't work out as a hunting dog, but I bet she would make a great companion!" said the spokesperson. The large male longhaired black cat at right is also available for adoption. "He is gorgeous and equally friendly," said the spokesperson. "He has some mats in his fur, but he would make a 'purr-fect' addition to your household!" Several other pets may also be available. "This week alone five dogs have been brought in," said the spokesperson. "Four of them were owner giveups. Please consider the responsibility that comes with having a pet. Do not give one to someone as a gift if she or he didn't ask for one! We have all sizes and colors of cats: black, white, calico, torties, tabbies, grey, black/white, and tuxedos. Please come in and meet them so they can lie under your Christmas tree! Please consider adopting from a shelter or rescue instead of paying hundreds of dollars for a pet. These homeless animals have no other options." As this is the holiday season, the Garrett County Animal Shelter's hours of operation will vary during the next two weeks. Persons wanting to visit the facility, therefore, are advised to call the facility at 301-334-3553 to see when it will be open.

LOCAL RESIDENT HELPS REBUILD DISASTER AREA - Swanton resident Marvin Beckman, pictured above at the far right, was one of a group of volunteers based in the Shepherdstown, W.Va., area that recently returned from a trip to the hurricane-stricken areas of Biloxi and Gulfport, Miss. The group was part of the Lutheran Disaster Response Program. Members worked on three houses last week and prepared more than 200 Christmas packages for distribution to needy families dressed in the board's opinin Biloxi. The area, devastated by Hurricane Katrina last year, is approximately the size of Great Britain, and estimates range from 8 to 10 years for completion of cleanup and restoration efforts, Beckman noted. Also joining the group was Rev. Ralph Dunkin (pictured second from left holding a hat), bishop of the West Virginia/Western Maryland Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Beckman is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Swanton and a member of the Community Lutheran Partners Inc. board of directors. Below, Beckman, sweaty but happy with the progress being made, was photographed as he prepared to take a lunch break from working on a home in Biloxi. The owner of the house has severe allergy problems, and the building needed to be completely gutted and treated prior to new construction, Beckman said.

A Special Gift...

Tis the season of giving, and with just a few shopping days left before the big day, folks who celebrate Christmas are scrambling to get those last few gifts to place under the tree. Then there are those who have not even begun to shop yet...

There are, however, a number of gifts - exceedingly special ones - that cost nothing in monetary terms, do not require a trip to the store, and don't need to be wrapped, yet are so rarely given. An example of such a gift is simply letting someone know, be it friend or family member, how special he or she is to the giver. We travel through life not doing that very often, even for those closest to us, and then one day it is too late.

There is a fellow known to many people locally who is lying in a hospital bed in Morgantown today. He found out two days ago that he has a major blockage in his heart, and the only way of getting rid of it is open-heart surgery. However, because he is 84 years old and has some other health problems, the likelihood of his surviving surgery is not very favorable. So he has elected to come home today and, as he says, "just leave things in God's hands."

For that's what Lou Stouffer of Terra Alta has done all his life, as he has on many occasions survived situations and accidents that, frankly, should have resulted in his demise. The most significant of these would be his miraculous survival as a POW in a brutal Japanese prison camp during World War II, where he was routinely beaten and tortured, then nursed back to health, only to be tortured again. A man who at one time in his life weighed over 300 pounds came out of that prison weighing less than 80 pounds. He has also gone through other lifethreatening surgeries and has been a victim in a number of serious accidents throughout his life.

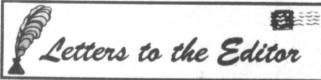

But the things that have happened to Lou are not what make him such a extraordinary person. What does is how he has lived his life, and what he does for others. We've told his story before on the pages of this newspaper, how for well over three decades he has played a "real" Santa Claus to literally thousands of area children in need by collecting new and used toys and clothing all year, loading them into his "sleigh" (a Ford Explorer and various other vehicles over the years), and spending many weeks delivering them. He wore his red Santa suit, drove tens of thousands of miles and, in some years, delivered gifts to well over 700 homes. His health does not allow him to do this today, but he still collects toys and clothing, which can be simply picked up at his residence.

Lou was a foster child who, because of circumstances, had to drop out of school even before going to high school. He drove a big-rig truck for many years to make a living, but he has certainly never been wealthy in a financial sense. He resides in a mobile home with his wife Lola and with not much more than the bare essentials. But he would literally give a person in need the shirt off his back. "No one ever got along in this lite all alone" is his oft repeated philosophy, and he has lived that philosophy by always, always doing what he can for others, and recognizing the simple fact that we need each other. So despite his lack of formal education, he is one of the wisest men walking the planet (not to mention that he can take a car apart and put it back together again blindfolded). And most importantly, he is obviously among the most giving, most caring people in the world. Over and over during those miserable days in the prison camp, Lou promised God that if he let him live, he would find a way to "pay him back." He has more than fulfilled that promise.

Today's column is certainly not intended to be To the Editor: Lou's eulogy, as none of us who know him are about to give up on him, despite this week's rather bleak news. And Lou is certainly not giving up either. As already noted, he has beaten the odds on so many other occasions that it would not be the least bit surprising if he sticks around this old earth for several years to come.

So, Lou, this is a special gift to you. Merry Christmas, old buddy.

(Prayers are also free, but wonderful, gifts. May we continue to give many of these to/for each other this holiday season.)

Editor's note: The following is a response to a letter to the editor from Pat Ashby that appeared in this column last week.

County roads personnel were in snow removal operations on that date and during the times you reference. The Department had two trucks treating Sand Flat Road at the same time, with one truck working from Route 135 toward Route 219, and the second truck working from Route 219 toward Route 135. A truck continued to treat this road when nightshift began. Herrington Manor and Oakland Sang Run roads were treated twice between the times you reference (1:30 and 4 p.m.) and treatment continued when the nightshift started at 5 p.m.

Thirdly, you allege that on December 8 a county truck drove across the centerline traveling at an excessive rate of speed. You did not report this to either the county roads department or the sheriff's office, and if you had done so, your allegation would have been investigated immediately.

I am very proud of employees with the Garrett County Roads Department. In addition to snow removal operations, they perform at liberty is eternal vigilance, superior levels in all areas. If you have safety concerns related to your employment with Garrett County Community Action, I would suggest that you communicate these to your supervisor, who would convey these to county roads management.

Sometimes it takes a confrontation such as the hearing on this issue to demonstrate once again to our public servants that we the people really do have something to protect here in Garrett County, and it's called freedom!

They should also realize that most folks here know that government at all levels already has way too much control over how we as free Americans conduct ourselves and live our lives.

IN A HOLLY DAZE

I'm feeling a little Scroogy. This Christmas thing is just nutso, isn't it? Are you stressing? Are you freaking out about what all you have left to do? Are you starting to dream about Dec. 26, when you know it'll all be finished, you will have managed every detail, and you can quit sitting straight up in bed at 3 a.m. with another "I almost forgot (fill in the blank)!"? I'm all those things at the moment, and I am tempted to say "bah" as well as "humbug." And maybe a few other nasty words.

So why do we do this? Why do we tote box after box down from the attic, getting all dusty and reviving comatose flies, and stack them in the living room in a precarious yet totally in-the-way fashion, then unpack them over many days, trying to get the house in some kind of festive shape? Why do we go out and kill a tree, jam it into a stand, and drag it into the house, for pete's sake? Climb ladders and hang lights, hurt our brains trying to figure out the wiring; force ourselves to clean off tabletops and shelves so we can set up our kitschy Santas and resin snowmen and plastic Nativity scenes, complete with the broken-off shepherd's crook and having all cast members BUT the baby, which was stolen by the cat and is somewhere under the couch with chew marks; stew for hours about what to buy everyone on the list, which seems to grow longer about every six seconds - Whew! It's exhausting just writing it. And how tired are we going to make ourselves over the next few days, trying to get all our Christmas ducks in a row, with the proper wings and halos attached? There are Christmas parties and pageants, special church services, last minute buying panics, and wrapping — all that wrapping. If I didn't have to sleep or eat or work or get dressed in the mornings, I think I'd be fine. Breathing kinda gets in the way, too.

Yes, yes, I know - I could've done some of it earlier. But I'm just wired this way. I always have something going on, and everything has its season, like soccer or band or all the fall birthdays we have in this family. When I slide from one to the other, or between the two, I sure don't have time to be Christmas shopping. I can't even wrap my brain around doing that until at least after Thanksgiving. And even then, I go to stores or travel to a mall, and I am suddenly even dumber than usual. I can't figure out what to look for. I forget what I'm doing there. I nearly forget my name. I begin to wander aimlessly, staring at all those bright lights, flinching at that pounding rendition of Sleigh Ride, and confounded by all those kiosks. What's with all the kiosks? Mostly I just want to turn around and sprint to the car, drive away, and hide in a cave until about Jan. 3. I end up buying a pack of toilet paper, a light bulb, and cat food. That's it. I can't really get fired up about buying stuff until the days are running out and the urgency is closing in. Not healthy, I imagine. Oh, well. I don't drink enough water or do enough sit-ups per week, either. So sue me.

Getting swept up into the Christmas frenzy is nearly impossible to avoid. My husband John and I have said several times in the past few days that someone somewhere simply MUST put the skids on this silliness. But who? Who's going to be the first one to say, "Ya know what? Let's not do this. I won't do it for you, and don't you do it for me. Let's give each other a big hug and move on." And I mean say it and really mean it - not say it and then show up on Christmas morning with a trinket wrapped in Spongebob Squarepants paper, just for fun. That blows it.

Christmas is too nutty, for sure, and people take things way too seriously, arguing over at whose house one will spend the actual day, what time the great unwrapping will take place (with synchronized watches, of course), lots of toe-tapping and eye-rolling waiting for those always-tardy family members, and the grievous error of bringing up politics around the dinner table, which can easily culminate in airborne turkey legs. All this is in addition to the huge shoveling of money out the door in exchange for very small but costly presents for three growing boys... Good-bye, little toadskins. It was fun while you lasted. Come back and visit someday, will ya?

So someone should put the brakes on all this and mean

Nah, not really. The holiday that is such a big deal does give us something - something more than ill-fitting PJs and too much sugar. Christmas gives us an open door to actually be nice to someone. We can use Christmas as our "in" to say what we should say all year, but don't. The season allows us to tell our friends we love them. We can do that on or around Dec. 25th without appearing too weird. We can send notes to each other to catch up, even if we only do it at this time every December. We can help a person out, buoy another's spirits, pat yet another on the back - all just for being who they are. It's an invitation to do all of that, and we should grab it. This is a harsh little planet most of the time, and it's difficult to navigate the constant waves without getting hurt or hurting someone else. So if we have this time to ease another's path, let's do it. And perhaps carry it on, well after the pretty wrapping paper is all wadded up and the first toy goes on the blink. Love came down at Christmas, you know. Let's hold on to it, and even keep it here awhile.

My name is Mitchell Azar. For the last 60 years I have been a faithful blood donor. I knew how important it was to donate in order to make sure that blood was there for hospital patients when they needed it especially if you have type O blood like me. We are what they call "universal donors." Our blood can be given to practically anyone with any blood type. This is especially vital for trauma patients, who in most cases enter the emergency room needing an immediate blood transfusion, but the hospital may not know their blood type. Type O blood can also help save or prolong the lives of premature babies, plus cancer and leukemia patients.

I began donating because I knew my blood type was needed to help those around me. I just never knew that some day I would be one of those people who needed the blood. You see, in September I was diagnosed with cancer. I am currently going through treatments and on my way to recovery, but because of it, I can no longer donate blood. That is why I am writing today. I encourage the public to take up my place as a regular blood donor. As I

Berkebile said it is easy for con artists to locate residents' mailing addresses through the Internet and target them for certain scams.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross, who attended the commissioners' meeting, added that it was also easy for scammers to get e-mail addresses and use those to lure people into giving out vital information.

For example, scammers will send out e-mails stating that the recipients' eBay accounts need to be updated. Those who use eBay may think the message is from the actual auction site and give out their bank account numbers, as requested by the con artists.

Cathy's Book: If Found Call (650) 266-8233 by Sean Stewart and Jordan Weisman

c. 2006, Running Press, $17.95, 143 pages Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer Where do you keep your journal?

Wait. Don't tell me. Your journal is private. When too many thoughts are jumbling around in your brain, it's nice to have a place to sort them all out on paper, knowing that nobody will read them.

But what if you found someone else's diary? Would you read it before you returned it? You will if you have Cathy's Book: If Found Call (650) 266-8233 by Sean Stewart and Jordan Weisman. You won't be able to put Cathy's

It had to have been a spider bite. Cathy doesn't do drugs (even though her mother accuses her of it), but there's a small bruise that looks suspiciously like a needle mark on the inner part of her arm and Cathy has no idea where it came from. It wasn't there when she went to Victor's house. She fell asleep on Victor's sofa and the next morning, there it was: a small bruise-like hole.

And what's with Victor, anyhow? He broke up with Cathy just days ago, for no apparent reason. It happened right after she fell asleep on his sofa. So, what...falling asleep in someone's living room is a crime?

Victor was always a little odd, though. He knew a lot about World War I and he was a pilot with his own plane, even though he was just 20-something. Yeah, he was kind of old to be going out with someone in highschool, but Cathy knew Victor liked her, even though he never even kissed her.

Still, there's something going on. Something strange. Remembering that Victor lived in his uncle's house in a swanky San Francisco neighborhood, Cathy decides to find out why her ex-BF broke up with her. She drives to the house, where it's way too easy to break in.

In the house's office, Cathy finds an old picture of a man who was a dead-ringer for Victor. She finds an old wedding invitation, letters, newspaper clippings, and an appointment book that indicate Victor might've been cheating on Cathy with a woman named Carla. The papers lead Cathy to Chinatown, where she finds Victor and confronts him. But when he disappears into a crowd and Carla turns up with three bullet holes in her belly, Cathy knows she's in way over her head.

I wish adult novels were this much fun to read. Cathy's Book is like nothing you've ever experienced. This book, "written" to Emma, Cathy's best friend, is like one big clue for you to figure out. All the "evidence" Cathy found in Victor's house is included in a side pocket of the book. You can log on to the web sites; Google the people, locations, and corporations; and call the phone numbers to find out where she's been. Even if you don't want to follow along electronically, the story itself is one you can't stop reading.

IM your friends, read Cathy's Book, and get involved. You'll want to put away your own journal for a couple of days when you get this excellent book.

ST. MARK'S TO HOST CHRISTMAS EVE CANDLELIGHT SERVICE - St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland will host its annual late night Christmas Eve candlelight service on Sunday, Dec. 24, and the public is invited to attend. The church is located at the corner of Second and Center streets. A prelude of special music will begin at 10:30 p.m., featuring musicians Jana Brown, vocal; Susan Peterson, flute; Mary McEwen, vocal; Pat Shelton, organ; Laura Robinson, piano; Pastor Scott Robinson, guitar and vocal; Libby Riley, flute; and Jeff, Liz, and Suzanne Gilbert, vocals. The community candlelight service of Holy Communion will begin at 11 p.m. As a congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, St. Mark's practices "communion hospitality," which means that all guests are invited to participate, Pastor Robinson noted. Traditional and contemporary sacred music will be used throughout the service, and St. Mark's choir will sing a piece featuring soloist Meredith Pagenhardt, accompanied by Laura Robinson; and a quartet of Don Sincell, Betsy Dempsey, the pastor, and McEwen will also sing, with the pastor on guitar and Peterson on flute. For more information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2668, or e-mail at stmarksoakland@verizon.net. Pictured above, center, is Pastor Robinson. Standing in the first row, from left, are Jana Brown, Suzanne Sincell, Dawn Scheffel, Hannah Sincell, and Libby Riley. Second row, same order: Susan Peterson (director), Mary McEwen, Judy Bertsch, Liz Gilbert, and Laura Robinson. Back row: Lowell Leitzel, Chick Handsaker, Fred Learey, Don Sincell, George Scheffel, and Jeff Gilbert. Pagenhardt is pictured at K OF C PRESENTS AWARDS FOR WINNING POSTERS - At this year's annual parish Christmas party in the parish hall of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland, the Knights of Columbus, Council 1771, presented first place awards in the "Keep Christ in Christmas" poster contest. Each of the winning posters will be judged for additional honors at the Knights of Columbus state council level later this month. Pictured from left are Bill Heise, past Grand Knight and treasurer; Julie Hall, 8th grade winner; Tess Watson, 6th grade; and Logan Miller, 5th grade. Not present for the photo were winners William Baker, 2nd grade; Miles Parron, 4th grade; and Corinne Weaver, 7th grade. All recipients are children of St. Peter's Sunday school.

On this day, we celebrate with joy the birth of a Child who would become our Savior. May you live in the light of His love and follow His message of peace and hope for all.

Rate caps have kept our residential customers' electric bills artificially low for the last six years. Due to these rate capspart of a state-mandated transition to marketbased pricing-the average Maryland residential customer's electric bill has increased only one percent since January 2001.

Meanwhile, the cost of the fuels used to generate electricity increased dramatically. Coal costs jumped 43 percent and natural gas costs skyrocketed 71 percent over the same period.

The rate cap on the generation portion of your bill is scheduled to expire at the end of 2008. This will cause your monthly bill to increase significantly.

You spoke-we listened. We've listened to customers' opinions on how to manage the transition to market-based rates. We held several open house meetings for customers earlier this month. Now, we're developing a plan for a gradual transition that will ease the impact on your bill ... and your budget.

TWO WORLDS OF CHRISTMAS

by Joan Crawford

Once upon a December Friday, I went to Tyson's Corner Mall in Virginia during the rush of Christmastide. My daughter who lives nearby knew that we needed to get there early so we were there when the stores opened, and we could see sparkling trees and snow men in the entranceways of the shops and stores. In the center of the mall, garlands with colored lights glistened from railings around three levels of balconies. Within an hour the crowds began to fill the empty spaces, and by afternoon all I could see were bobbing heads coming toward me.

As I sat on the top level waiting for my daughter who was standing in a checkout line I could see through the railing down to the food court below where people shuffled back and forth to the tables in the center. In an instant I knew I was looking at more people than I would see in Garrett County in a week. I was struck by the contrast. A woman came to the other end of the bench, dropped three full shopping bags on the floor in front of her, and mumbled something about being "half-finished." I gave her a knowing smile. Here we were in our December mode.

Around me people of different ethnic groups and nationalities - some old, some young, some holding children by the hand or pushing strollers, others clutching bags and packages - jostled along. I knew they would not all be celebrating Christmas as I would, but they all seemed to be serious about their need to shop.

Above the din of the crowd I heard the sound system bringing the familiar words and melody of "Silver Bells" to the shoppers - "It's Christmas time in the city," and I remembered Christmas in the city. As I reflected on years past I knew again how the traditions of Christmas have changed for me since I became a family of one. Like others who have seen 80 or more Christmas seasons, I enjoy remembering the way it used to be

On Monday evenings the department stores in Pittsburgh - my city - stayed open until 9 p.m. I would meet my husband after work and we would shop together, bumping elbows with other couples as we hurried along the sidewalks, our coat collars turned up against the cold. We passed store windows where animated characters looked alive, and heard the bells rung by uniformed Salvation Army officers making their appeal. Back then we could make our purchases that evening and have them delivered later in the week. Each store had its own fleet of

When we moved to Maryland, we shopped at the mall where stores, all under one roof, were open every evening. My husband would make trips to the car with the things I purchased, and wait patiently on a bench where he could watch the passing parade of shoppers and wave to people he knew. Sometimes he would find a friend whose wife was shopping and the two would enjoy an interval of Christmas spectating together.

I have never really liked shopping malls, though I realize that they are a necessity in our modern life styles. Now I do most of my shopping by catalog - sitting in the family room while my dog curls up in the patches of sunlight that move across the floor as the sun moves to Another Christmas tradition I no longer follow is putting up a Christmas tree. It was something we did for many years as a family - tramping through the snow to find the right tree, bringing it home on the roof rack of a station wagon, and setting it up. Trimming it became a ritual of togetherness. My husband engineered the trains and our daughters arranged the village. Today I take a fiber optic tree out of a box and plug it in. Several years ago my oldest granddaughter objected to the "instant trees" and planted a beautiful little blue spruce out front. We now have lights on a living Christmas tree.

A few special decorations still go in their assigned places each year - three little Santa Claus musicians my daughter's 8th grade Scout troop sold many years ago now in the center of the mantel, a musical Santa Claus nutcracker our other daughter brought from Germany. He now sits on the counter, waiting for someone to turn the key that sets him in motion.

A favorite tradition in our house has always been writing Christmas cards, probably because many of our friends from Navy days now lived all over the country and we seldom saw them. Some of them would come to ship reunions, but those don't happen anymore. I still write the cards, but every year there are fewer.

I have lived in the singular for nearly eight years now, but I still find myself thinking in the plural. So we will have Christmas dinner at our house again, as we have for 40 years. Our daughters and their families, a handful of other relatives, and a group of close friends will gather usually about 20 people.

Even though I no longer have Christmas in the city, I enjoy a brief trip into that sparkling world each year. Yet I am always glad to come home to the world I see out my from window - a world of lake and trees, sunsets and geese. I remember the day I heard that "black Friday" this year set records for shopping. Late afternoon sun was casting long rays of golden light across the lake and a gray November shoreline, when out of the gathering mist floated three white swans. For several minutes I watched the sunlight playing on them - pink and gold - as they moved across the water. Then they were out of sight. It was a beautiful, peaceful moment before the holiday rush a gift I did not have to pay for or stand in line to get.

ACCIDENT

The winners of Accident's outdoor Christmas decoration contest were announced recently. Several categories were considered by the judges, and awards were given for both residential and business decorations. In the traditional decoration class, first place was given to Hob and Dot Bowser, South Main Street, and honorable mention went to John and Holly Bray, Oak Street. For creative decorations, first place was awarded to Brian and Melissa King, Fratz Street, and honorable mention to Cara Wachter, South Main Street. First place went to Doug and Sheila Butler, Drane Drive, and honorable mention went to Daniel and Kim Kremer, Colony Drive, in the simplistic category. For the commercial category, the Bear Den located on North Main Street received first place, and Phenix Technologies, Speicher Drive, received honorable

Winterize Your Outdoor Pets

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I read your article about keeping pets warm when temperatures drop. This was good advice for folks who have indoor pets, but you never even touched on those of us who have outdoor animals.

Here in rural Indiana, a lot of us keep hunting dogs and your basic 100-pound dog outside all year. It is not feasible to bring these animals in the house for months, especially when we work during the day and they are not "house trained."

My beagle runs free during the day in the woods around my house. At night I kennel him to keep the coyotes from eating him. I have a nice doghouse within the kennel to protect him from the elements. It is surrounded with straw for warmth and comfort. Recently, someone told me that cedar shavings make a warmer insulator within the doghouse. Is this true? - Sheila W. Aurora, Ind.

DEAR SHEILA: First, mea culpa! You're right, I only considered indoor dogs in my article and didn't think of pets kept outdoors. As you indicated, dogs that stay outdoors year-round should still have a warm place to sleep that's well-insulated from the elements. On very cold nights, outdoor pets need to be checked on frequently and, if showing signs that they cannot keep warm, moved to a warmer place immediately. As to cedar shavings versus straw,

I'm not sure that one is better than the other. Straw has been used as an insulator in homes and farm structures for thousands of years. However, straw can get packed down over time, reducing its insulating qualities (the air pockets between scattered straws are as important as the straw itself). Cedar shavings may be more resistant to packing-down and not need to be changed or re-scattered as often. You could give the shavings a try and see how they work and how your dog likes them.

"Little Lulu" Comics

Q.I have three issues of "Marge's Little Lulu" comics, Nos. 39, 81 and 123. Are they worth keeping? - Betty, Springfield, III.

A. According to most of the guides I consulted, they are worth a minimum of $100 each in good shape. As with most collectibles, condition is paramount. The value of a comic boils down to several factors, including condition, scarcity and demand. A good place to monitor the value of comics is eBay.

Incidentally, your issue No. 39 also features another popular cartoon character, Witch Hazel.

Q. I have a huge record collec-tion including 45 rpm and 33 rpm discs. Although I'm not really interested in selling them, I am curious about values. - Ron, Binghamton, N.Y.

A.I, too, collect records. In fact, I currently have more than 45,000 in my personal collection. Here are several books that I find extremely useful: Topping the chart on my reference hit parade is the Goldmine Standard Catalogue of American Records 1950-1975 by Tim Neely, published by KP Books and now in its 5th edition. This massive guide has price listings for 150,000plus LPs, 45s, EPs and Picture Sleeves. Also by Neely are the Gold-mine Record Album Price Guide (KP

Love is Inexhaustible

Love, is more like a flame than a bucket of water. A bucket of water can be used up, all at once, or a drop at a time. A flame, on the other hand, is likely to spread to whatever it comes in contact with. When you give love, it catches like a flame and love's warmth is reflected back to

you. It isn't like the pail of water that is depleted every time someone dips their ladle into it. Relationships based on convenience or utility are like the bucket of water. If a friend keeps dipping into your bucket but doesn't replenish it, it soon runs low, and eventually there is nothing more to give. But, relationships based on love don't usually work that way. When the lover gives to their beloved they are replenished in the act of giving, and their love grows. The supply of love is never in danger of running out, because both lovers seek to outdo each other in their giving, and both have cups that runnneth over.

Many waters cannot quench love, neither can floods drown it. If a man offered for love all the wealth of his house, it would be utterly scorned.

Another round of 'Idol' chatter starts soon

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Will "American Idol" return? -Elaine Wasinger, Laramie, Wyo.

A: With the huge ratings that show gets? You bet it will! The Fox talent competition - with host Ryan Seacrest and judges Paula Abdul, Simon Cowell and Randy Jackson still on board will have its now-traditional winter launch Jan. 16 on Fox. As usual, the new episodes will begin with highlights of the audition process that began in August in Los Angeles.

O: I would like to know where I could send a fan letter to Giada De Laurentiis. -Annie Uckardes, Hicksville, N.Y.

A: You can send your letter to the chef in care of Food Network, 1180 Avenue of the Americas, 11th Floor, New York, NY 10036

Q: I have been trying to find out if a DVD is available for the UPN series "Girlfriends." -Rhonda Beckles, Reisterstown, Md.

A: Not yet, but soon. The show which now airs on The CW will have its first season commemorated in a DVD set slated to be released by Paramount

Home Video on Feb. 27. Q: Has "Six Degrees" been canceled? "Men in Trees" has replaced it. -Barb Kiple, Ottumwa, Iowa A: ABC is doing some timeslot shuffling of shows, and at this writing, the network was intending to bring back the filmedon-location New York drama in January. O: Who is the actress who fell in love with the title character in "Meet Joe Black"? Has she done any television roles? -Dorothy Jacobs, Lake Forest, Calif.

A: That's British actress (yes, despite the American accent)

Ryan Seacrest

Claire Forlani, who currently has a recurring role as a forensics expert - and Gary Sinise's love interest - on CBS' "CSI: NY." Most of her work has been for the big screen, but she appeared opposite Patrick Dempsey ("Grey's Anatomy") in the drama "JFK: Reckless Youth," and she also was in the cast of last summer's TNT miniseries "Stephen King's Nightmares and Dream-

Q: A few weeks ago, you reminded a reader of one of my favorite series, "Tales of the Gold Monkey." During the same time frame, a rival network also ran an Indiana Jones imitation. Could you refresh me on its title and stars?

-Alfred Charest, Golden, Colo. A: "Bring 'Em Back Alive," which CBS aired during the 1982-83 season, actually was inspired by the true adventures of hunter and guide Frank Buck. Bruce Boxleitner had that role; the show also starred Cindy Morgan and Ron O'Neal ("Super-

Army National Guard and delivered to the medical center on the same day. "Many soldiers in the hospital are alone during the holiday season, and the hope is these stockings will help brighten their day and demonstrate that America cares about them," said LTC (retired) Jack Riley, SHS JROTC instructor. 2006-07 SIXTH MAN CLUB GUIDELINES AND GOALS ANNOUNCED

Goals of the 6th Man Club include cheering for our student/athletes to enable each to be more successful, attending as many games/activities as possible to show the school's support, and providing a forum for positive student fun. Unacceptable 6th Man Club student actions include doing anything deemed derogatory toward the opposing team, coaches, players, cheerleaders, and/or fans. For example, participating in any fashion of intimidating gestures or cheers designed to be unsportsmanlike in nature; participating in cheers using vulgarity or bringing unwanted attraction to the school or team; unsportsmanlike gestures or chants focused on the officials; and chanting opposing players' names in repetition. The use of signs must be approved by administration or the athletic director. It is unsportsmanlike for students to turn their back or put newspapers in front of them when the opponent is introduced. Be respectful of opponents' introduction and time commitment they have made to be a part of a team. The consequences for unacceptable actions include: dismissal for the remainder of the contest (1st offense) and dismissal for the remainder of the year from attending extracurricular functions (2nd offense). Should the first offense be deemed extremely inappropriate, the student will be dismissed from future events for the re-

YEARBOOK THANKS BUSINESS PARTICIPATION IN FUNDRAISER

The yearbook staff would like to thank the following businesses for participating in the discount card fundraiser: Garrett County businesses: Oakland Towne Restaurant, China Wok, Quiznos, Annie's Kitchen, Santa Fe Grille, Burger King, Denny's, Par-Matt Lanes, NuView Video, Taco Bell, Brenda's Pizzeria, Garrett 8 Cinemas. Keysers Ridge Truck Stop, and Smiley's Pizzeria; LaVale area businesses: Claire's, Orange Julius, Dairy Queen, Subway, KFC, Auntie Anne's, Dunham's Sports, and Long John Silver's. Persons interested in purchasing a discount card should contact any yearbook student or Maria Zumpano, adviser. Cards are $10.

YEARBOOK INVOICES SCHEDULED TO ARRIVE

IN MAIL Yearbook orders have been submitted to Josten's for processing. Students who ordered a yearbook should be receiving invoices in the mail. Any student who has not received an invoice from Josten's should contact Maria Zumpano sometime after the holiday break

ECONOMICS TEAM FINISHES IN

TOP 1% OF STATE Sophomore Cathy Hughes and junior Aaron Garner recently earned high honors in the fall Stock Market Game. This 10-week academic competition boasted 1,638 teams statewide. Cathy and Aaron's team portfolio ranked them first among 143 teams in the Western Region (Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties). Their gain of $23,236.99 in the 10-week game also allowed them to finish in the top 1% in the state and place 17th overall among the 1,638 teams. Cathy and Aaron will receive an award for their portfolio performance in May at the Western Region Ceremony in Hagerstown. The Stock Market Game is sponsored by the Maryland Council on Economic Education and is a comprehensive, engaging, real-world program that advances academic achievement by taking students' learning to the next level. Mrs. Lisa Bender finished in 2nd place among the 95 teacher competitors and 11th place overall. She partners with Rob Sharps of PrimeVest Financial Services to bring lessons on finance into the classroom. This is the 12th year that First United and PrimeVest have funded

this program for SHS students. LIBRARY OF SCHOOL ACORNS DIGITIZED

Media specialist John Coffman and his students are digitizing the library of Acorns, the school newspaper, housed in the school's media center. Digitized copies of the Acorn are stored on the school's server and saved in a .pdf format. So far, they have successfully digitized all of the Acorns from the 1920s and '30s, including Volume I Issue I from 1927. "It's funny that back in the 1930s, students were writing letters about chewing gum in class. Some things never change," said Coffman. The journalism class will celebrate the 80th anniversary of the Acom during the 2007-2008 school year and publish a special edition of the paper commemorating the anniversary. U.S. JCI SENATE FOUNDATION

Personal and corporate income taxes, sales and use taxes, as well as lottery revenues represent 87.5 percent of total Maryland general fund revenues. Combined, income tax revenues in FY 2008 are forecast to increase by 6.48 percent over FY 2007, with personal income tax revenue increasing by 6.78 percent and corporate income tax revenue increasing by 3 percent. Sales and use tax revenue is projected to increase by 4.79 percent in FY 08. Lottery revenues are expected to increase by 4.58 percent.

"These are sound, prudent revenue estimates. They clearly alert us to carefully watch the sales and corporate tax revenue numbers over the coming months," said Treasurer Nancy K. Kopp. "As I noted in our prior report, I believe we must focus on the state's structural deficit and take steps not only to deal with the projected deficit in 2008, but also to strengthen our fiscal structure for future years. Maryland has a strong, diversified economy which is dependent on a well-trained labor pool and a sound infrastructure. We must have a revenue structure that promotes economic growth while sustaining an effective and efficient government. I feel sure the governor-elect and the General Assembly will work together to resolve the structural deficit and protect our economy."

Franchise, excise, licenses, and other miscellaneous fees represent the remaining 12.5 percent of the general fund. These sources of state revenue are expected to de-

MAKE THE RIGHT CALL!

Imagine the fire department responding to a call by sending a bulldozer manned by bird-watchers. What if you needed an electrician and a banker showed up at your door? Want to sell your home? Would you call a nurse or a chemist to sell it?

Homeowners come from all walks of life - doctors, pharmacists, accountants, professors, administrators, and thousands of other professions. Each is good at what they do. Some are specialists with comprehensive backgrounds in extremely technical subjects. Others are generalists using their vision and intuition to fulfill their professional responsibilities. Each has a good handle on their particular area of expertise.

Why is it then that some property owners embark on a temporary new career - real estate - when selling their home? Why consider taking a leave of absence from their existing career?

To sell "By Owner" requires the sellers to become marketing experts with in-depth knowledge of mortgage financing, contracts, taxation, advertising, direct mail strategies, psychology, face-to-face selling, and negotiating. Owners must remain at home to man the phones when buyers call. Answering machines do not satisfy the needs of real

What's more, "By Owners" must go head-to-head with their competition, those full-time, experienced, educated agents who make their living by serving sellers. Season's Greetings

The Gift

"Twas a glorious holiday, all would agree,"
Mom thought as she sat adoring the tree.
The dishes done and the hordes tucked away,
She viewed the gifts she'd been given that day.

The crystal pitcher was a sight to behold,
That brand new cologne, a bracelet of gold,
Her gorgeous clothing she will love to wear,
A fancy red comb to adorn her hair.

One object stood out, was her grandest prize. She held in her hand, as tears filled her eyes. Her favorite gift, from her child, age six:

A napkin holder of popsiele sticks.

Snyder's Cabinets of Oakland has assisted the auxiliary with the design, manufacturing and installation of the new countertops and seating area.

"Jason Snyder has donated his time and talent to help the auxiliary create this coffee shop," said Shay. "We can't thank him enough for his work on this project and his support of Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Loar Auxiliary."

"The Loar Auxiliary has been able to make considerable improvements to the vending space due in large part to volunteer labor and generously donated supplies," explained Kathy reaser, CFRE, director of development and volunteer services.

The Loar Auxiliary was founded nearly 55 years ago and in 1976 expanded its services to include the operation of the Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop, which is located in the hospital. The Gift Shop is managed and operated by a core group of volunteers. All proceeds from the Gift Shop and Cup O' Joe will be used by the auxiliary to support Garrett County Memorial Hospital and its patients, employees, and visitors. ACCIDENT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL WAS SELECTED for a Maryland Center for Character Education School of the Year Award. Representing Garrett County at the recognition ceremony recently were Connie Kamp, guidance counselor at Accident Elementary; Dr. Phil Lauver, supervisor of pupil services; and Karen Kamauff DeVore, principal. Participants were able to view exhibits displayed by more than 20 counties. They were also provided with information on how to enhance a school's culture, as keynote speaker Phil Catania communicated his inspiring mission for character education.

A similar process took place in the early 1990s, and the results were used to bring in hundreds of thousands of dollars in grants that led to new health programs, according to the spokesperson. These programs have included a car seat loaner program, bike helmet distribution program, tobacco cessation program, community minigrants, AmeriCorps, afterschool programs, and community outreach, among others.

MAPP project workgroups have been meeting to assess public health strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats. These workgroups are as follows:

Forces of Change - This group met and generated a list of potential forces that could impact the way health care is delivered and forces that should be considered as public health stakeholders plan for the future. The group is chaired by Denise Liston of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

All MAPP activities and meetings are open to the public, and community input is welcomed. For more information about the workgroups or the MAPP process, persons may telephone Kendra Todd at the health department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111, or Kendra Thayer at the hospital at

RYAN'S GLADE by Gary Pritts, Reporter

The Ryan's Glade 4-H Club met Tuesday, Nov. 21, at the Ryan's Glade Community Building. Andrea Steyer called the meeting to order. Pledges were led by Charise Tasker and Chas Custer. Jessica Steyer gave the treasurer's report. The roll call question was "What are you thankful for?"

Tara Marple gave a report on the Cove Run corn maze. Gary Pritts gave a report on the fall steer weigh-in. 4-H candy bar money was collected by all.

We were reminded that our record books need to be turned in at the January meeting.

We then had the officer elections. The results were as follows: Andrea Steyer, vice president; Jennifer Steyer, secretary; Jessica Steyer, treasurer; and Gary

A VISIT WITH THE BIG MAN - Santa Claus recently spent some time at the Highland Thrift Shop in Grantsville, and is pictured above with Jacob Housel. Children of the area had an opportunity to talk with Santa, have a picture taken, and receive a stuffed toy. The Highland Thrift Shop is a non-profit organization run by the Grantsville area churches. Its workers are volunteers, and monies earned go back into the community in the form of donations. Recipients include the Dove Center, the Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library, the Warm the Children campaign, Habitat for Humanity, area fire departments, and Union Rescue Mission.

Single-Vehicle Accident Leads To DWI Arrest

The driver involved in a single-vehicle accident Saturday was charged with drunk driving, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Canfield, Hallie Hockman, and Katrina Oester.

Jeremy Conners, 22, Morgantown, W.Va., told police he had swerved to miss a deer and lost control and over steered, which caused the vehicle to overturn. The 1998 Jeep Cherokee was located on its top on the northbound side of Gorman Road. According to police, Conners was intoxicated.

He was arrested and charged with driving while impaired, and was later re- Market Square Shopping Center, McHenry TRAUERS

Investigation is seeking information related to two burglaries that occurred in Deer Park sometime between Friday evening, Dec. 8, and Sunday evening, Dec.

The incidents occurred at Liza's Learning Center and T and B Repair. Persons with information are asked to contact GBI at 301-334-1909. Police said the suspect(s) entered after breaking windows in both businesses.

Christmas Week Garbage Collection – During Christmas week all garbage collection will occur on Wednesday, Dec. 27. Residents are asked to put garbage out for collection Tuesday night. The regular collection schedule will resume on the following week.

New Standing Committees to be Formed – The mayor and town council have approved the formation of four new standing committees. Solicitation of applications for citizen members of committees will be published in future issues of this newspaper. The committees are as follows:

Audit Committee – This committee will comprise three or more appointed citizen members who will meet monthly. No elected officials or town staff will serve on this committee. The purpose of this committee is to monitor the financial affairs of the municipal corporation for compliance with certain financial ordinances, standard accounting practices, and budgetary constraints. Candidates for this committee must have the appropriate educational and/or professional background in finances/accounting. Members of this committee will be compensated for each meeting attended.

Risk Management Committee – This committee will comprise the town safety officer, the town administrator, and one or more members of the of the mayor and town council. The frequency of meetings has not been established. The purpose of this committee is to implement and manage a comprehensive risk management program for the town, covering issues of safety, exposure to liability, etc. Members of this committee will receive no compensation.

Community Legacy Committee – This committee may comprise citizen members, elected officials, and town staff. The frequency of meetings has not been established. The purpose of this committee is to implement the Community Legacy Strategic Plan, which was completed in August 2004. Major elements of the plan include: Historic Preservation, Housing, Recreational Amenities, Commercial Area Guidelines/Development, and Leadership Development. Copies of the Community Legacy Strategic Plan are available for review at Town Hall. This is a volunteer committee, so members will receive no compensation.

Community Events & Activities Committee – This committee may comprise citizen members, elected officials, and town staff. The frequency of meetings has not been established. The purpose of this committee is to plan various town events and organize ongoing activities for members of the community (such as sports programs for children, activities for the elderly, etc.). This committee will likely coordinate with other area programs/agencies. This is a volunteer committee, so members will receive no compensation.

be nasty I realize why I enjoy watching the old movies on television. When I spent weekends with my Buckle grandparents away from the farm and my pony, most Sunday afternoons were spent watching Sunday movies. Occasionally would go next door to Russell and Mary Brenneman's farm and watch some special movies with their daughters Carolyn, Doris, and Ruth. I remember especially the first time I saw National Velvet and Lassie Come Home with them. Those old movies are so uplifting and positive,

CHRISTMAS EVE

The Republican newspaper and the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland are now finished with this year's Warm the Children program. We have been thrilled to serve more than 300 local children in need! The donation time has come to a close for this year as well. The following individuals and/or organizations donated to the fund over the past week. Contributions are now being banked for use next year, or in times of emergencies (fires, flooding, etc.) when children need our help.

Thank you all for your generosity!

MANAGING STRESS

Glance at the most recent National Vital Statistics Report listing the 10 leading causes of death in America, and you won't find the word "stress" anywhere. Yet many well-respected studies link stress to heart disease and stroke - two of the top 10 killers. Stress may also influence cancer and chronic lower respiratory diseases, which rank as numbers two and four, respectively, in the top 10.

Stress has implications for many other ailments as well. Depression and anxiety, which afflict millions of Americans, can be caused or exacerbated by stress. It also triggers flare-ups of asthma, rheumatoid arthritis, and gastrointestinal problems. And illness is just the tip of the iceberg. Stress affects you emotionally as well.

In the course of a lifetime, odds are good that you'll experience some very stressful events. You'll also face a gamut of far smaller, day-to-day stressors. How you deal with these stressful events, big and small, will determine the impact on your physical health and emotional well-

Several decades ago, two psychiatrists at the University of Washington devised a scale for researchers that weighed the stress of major life events. The death of a spouse - which ranks highest - was later shown to have a serious impact on the health of the surviving spouse. Although most of the events on the scale would be considered traumatic, many of the life events aren't obviously negative. An outstanding personal achievement, a new baby, or a marriage may seem like cause for celebration.

But even these life events can cause stress. While most symptoms of stress may be obvious, many symptoms are more subtle. The first line of defense is to recognize that certain physical and emotional changes may indeed be caused by stress itself. Although most people might attribute headache, sleep disturbances, or irritability to stress, less obvious symptoms can include ringing in the ears, a frequent and urgent need to urinate, and difficulty swallowing. Understanding the many ways that stress can manifest itself in physical and behavioral symptoms, and identifying the triggers for stress, is the first step toward achieving relief.

There are almost as many techniques, practices, and treatments for dealing with stress as there are causes of it. From ancient relaxation techniques to the latest thinking on proper nutrition, from breathing exercises to repetitive prayer, there are numerous tools to help people cope.

Treatments for Irritable Bowel Syndrome

Irritable Bowel Syndrome (IBS) is a condition that affects the intestines and causes abdominal pain and discomfort. IBS is caused by impaired movement of the digestive tract. There may be abnormal muscle contractions occurring in any part of the intestines in persons affected. Constipation, diarrhea, and bloating are all symptoms of irritable bowel syndrome. Women are two to three times as likely as men to be affected by this condition. Symptoms may be triggered by stress and eating habits

Lifestyle changes such as stress management and dietary changes are the main treatments for this condition. Taking fiber supplements with fluids may help control constipation. Over-the-counter medications are available for the treatment of diarrhea. Anticholinergic medications alleviate painful spasms of the bowel. Antidepressants may be prescribed for persons who are also experiencing pain and depression.

Local Red Cross Issues Plea For Blood Donations

The Greater Chesapeake & Potomac (GC & P) Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross is issuing an urgent plea for immediate blood donations, because of low blood donor turnout and the projection of a difficult holiday season. This holiday season has brought blood inventory shortages because of donor vacations, cold weather, and other factors. The demand for donated blood, however, is constant. All blood types are needed on a

Some techniques can be especially beneficial under certain circumstances, but not as helpful under others. Understanding what works for us as individuals, and for the stressful circumstances at hand, can require an exploration of a number of stress-reduction methods. And as always, it is important to know when to seek professional help. These efforts can reward you richly with better health, greater peace of mind, and a smoother course

MINI-RELAXATIONS

Mini-relaxations can help alleviate fear and reduce pain while you sit in the dentist's chair or lie on an examining table. They are equally helpful in thwarting stress before an important meeting, while stuck in traffic, or when faced with people or situations that annoy you. Here are a few quick relaxation techniques to try.

When you have one minute - Place your hand just beneath your navel so you can feel the gentle rise and fall of your belly as you breathe. Breathe in slowly. Pause for a count of three. Breathe out. Pause for a count of three. Continue to breathe deeply for one minute, pausing for a count of three after each inhalation and exhalation.

Or alternatively, while sitting comfortably, take a few slow deep breaths and quietly repeat to yourself "I am" as you breathe in, and "at peace" as you breathe out. Repeat slowly two or three times. Then feel your entire body relax into the support of the chair.

When you have two minutes - Count down slowly from 10 to zero. With each number, take one complete breath, inhaling and exhaling. For example, breathe in deeply saying "10" to yourself. Breathe out slowly. On your next breath, say "nine," and so on. If you feel lightheaded, count down more slowly to space your breaths further apart. When you reach zero, you should feel more relaxed. If not, go through the exercise again.

When you have three minutes - While sitting down, take a break from whatever you're doing and check your body for tension. Relax your facial muscles and allow your jaw to fall open slightly. Let your shoulders drop. Let your arms fall to your sides. Allow your hands to loosen so that there are spaces between your fingers. Uncross your legs or ankles. Feel your thighs sink into your chair, letting your legs fall comfortably apart. Feel your shins and calves become heavier and your feet grow roots into the floor. Now breathe in slowly and breathe out slowly. Each time you breathe out, try to relax even more.

BITTINGER

Continued from Page D-3 Haydel was unable to go to his home for Christmas, so he spent the holidays with my family. My little brothers were very concerned about getting a present for Walter. I think they searched the attic. Besides the necklace for my mother, my favorite gifts I gave were the things I made myself for my girls, which were rag dolls and a big stuffed horse. One year I massproduced for all my cousins a children's book named When Pappy Dale was a Little Boy," which about my father's family life. Dale had a pony, and the way he disciplined him was rubbing rocks on the pony's front teeth.

believe the primary holiday stress is the feeling you should do more and get more presents, and did you forget an important Christmas card? The last week I had made a trip to my mailbox every day to mail an-pile of and bills. ten my brothers and r nd I did a holiday production for my t memorable

On was "The Little Blue Dishes." We forced my youngest brother to play a little girl who wanted a set of blue dishes. The climactic moment was when the little irl opened a gift and cried, The little blue dishes; just what I wanted!"

Another holiday ing was when my little brothers set out to go out in our woods to cut our own Christmas tree. Although hemlock is not the ideal species for a Christmas tree, we did find a suitable one and loaded it on a toboggan in a unforgettable severe snowstorm that blew in. I loaded the little boys and Carol on the toboggan and struggled across the open field to the house. I doubt it if that was the hardest work I had ever done, but it was clo e to it.

Speaking of my sister Carc', she turned 50 on Monday, Dec. 18. Gary Buckel also celebrated his birthday this week. I surmise that Gary has already passed the 50 mark.

The holidays are tough for people suffering with depression. This holiday is so far from perfect; the costumes are not perfect, my gifts are not good enough. Nothing is really right ex-cept that I have Claire, Caitlin, and Mere with me. Since Caitlin was a little girl we loved to watch "Charlie Brown's Christmas." We watched it this morning. She was touched by the poor little Christmas tree. She also sang along with "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." The theme of this movie is the sad state of modern Christmas. It is not a commerce holiday. One excellent example is the commercial for Kay Jewelry Store which is "Every kiss begins with Kay," meaning only diamond jewelry deserves a kiss, as if only an expensive gift is good enough. The glittering is all wrong for the true meaning of Christmas. The true story of Christmas is based on humility. Even the angels obtained from the office of Thrasher Engineering Inc., 30 Columbia Blvd., P.O. Box 1532, Clarksburg, WV 26302-1532, for the following cost of $150.00 per set. Amounts paid are not subject to refund. A two envelope system will be used.

Envelope No. 1 must have the following information presented on the front: Name and address of Bidder Bid on Phase I - Sanitary Sewer System Improvements and Upgrades received by the Town of Loch Lynn Heights.

Envelope 2 labeled "Bid Proposal" shall also be placed inside of Envelope #1.

Envelope No. 1 will be opened first and the Bid Opening Requirement items checked for compliance as outlined on the Bid Opening Checklist on page BOR - 1 of these contract documents. If such documents are found to be in order, Envelope No. 2 "Bid Proposal" will then be opened and will be publicly read aloud. If the documents required to be contained in Envelope No. 1 are not in order, Envelope No. 2 "Bid Proposal" will not be opened and the Bid will be considered nonresponsive and will be returned to the Bidder.

A bidder may not withdraw his bid for a period of ninety (90) days after the date set for the opening of bids. Bids shall be accompanied by a certified check or Bid Bond payable to Town of Loch Lynn Heights, in an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the base Bid.

Successful Bidder will be required to submit a current Maryland Contractor's License ten (10) days prior to the Pre-Construction. Inability to supply a current license will be considered a reason for forfeiture of Bid Bond.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the reception of bids will be returned unopened to the bidders. The Town of Loch Lynn Heights reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

A pre-conference will be held at the Town of Loch Lynn Heights, 211 Bonnie Blvd., Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland, on Tuesday, January 9, 2007, at 10 a.m.,

Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust dated October 31, 2001, and recorded in Liber 865, Folio 782 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, with an original principal balance of $91,000.00 default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Courthouse Door, Oakland, on

January 3, 2007 at 2:00 p.m. ALL THAT fee-simple LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co.,

MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust. The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $9,000 in the form of cash or readily available funds acceptable to the Trustees required at the time of sale. Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All other public charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, condo/HOA dues, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incident to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. All transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be paid by the Purchaser. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property, and assumes risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale. If ratification or settlement is delayed for any reason there shall be no abatement of interest The sale is subject to post-sale audit of the status of the loan with the loan servicer including, but not limited to, determination of whether the borrower entered into any repayment agreement, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to the sale. In any such event, this sale shall be null and void, and the Purchaser's sole remedy, in law or equity, shall be the return of the deposit without interest. If Purchaser fails to settle within ten days of ratification, he agrees to pay attorneys' fees in the amount of $750.00, plus costs, if the Trustees have moved to resell the property. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with such a motion on himself and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by said bidder at the time of the sale. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if the sale is not ratified by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Local Board Is Named To Allocate Grant

A board consisting of local representatives will assist the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in determining how the Emergency Food and Shelter Grant, recently awarded to Garrett County, will be allocated.

The local board is made up of representatives from the Garrett County commissioners, Mt. Top Ministerial Association, Catholic Charities, the Department of Social Services, and the American Red Cross, as well as a former homeless person.

The selection was made by a national board which was chaired by FEMA, consisting of representatives from the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, a council of Jewish federations, and Catholic Charities. The national board also includes a representative of the United Way of America, which will provide the administrative staff and function as the fiscal agent.

The national board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high need around the country. Under the terms of the grant from the national board, local governmental or private voluntary organizations chosen to receive funds accounting system and conduct an annual audit, practice nondiscrimination, have to deliver emergency food ed Monday at 5 p.m. and

AND THE WINNER IS ... Beautiful Tolliver Falls in Swallow Falls State Park would normally not appear this way on December 28, as a more typical scene this time of year would include snow, icicles, and a frozen-over pool beneath the falls. With the unseasonably warm weather this year, however, this is pretty much how the falls would look today. This particular shot, though, was taken much earlier by Michael Reed of McHenry, and for it he was awarded first place in the fourth annual Garrett County Vacation Guide Photo Contest. The second- and thirdplace winning photographs can be found on the back page of this section, along with a story about the contest. The unusually warm conditions are to continue at least until New Year's Day, according to area meteorologists, when the forecast calls for 2007 to be ushered in by rain changing to snow.

THIN ICE is all that is to be found in Garrett County this winter so far. Very little snow has found its way to the mountaintop, much to the frustration of those who love it. There was no white Christmas this year, and the weather folks are not calling for much change any time soon. The next possibility for any snow at all is not expected until next week sometime, and there is only a 40% chance of it actually materializing. So the winter in the mountains is mild thus far, bringing only thin ice and a skiff of snow. Photo by John McEwen.

THE FOURTH DAY OF CHRISTMAS -Today is just the fourth day of Christmas, with eight to go, so keep the lights on and the trees up! While many practice the tradition of un-decorating the house on New Year's Day, that actually means they are taking down Christmas on the eighth day, with four yet to go. But humans are impatient by nature, and some, having put their trees up possibly as early as the day after Halloween, are more than ready to toss them out on the street as soon as possible. But many others will celebrate the entire 12 days, and even beyond. To each his own. Happy New Year! Photo by John McEwen.

United Way Offers "Recipe For Giving"

"A Recipe for Giving," a segment of this year's United Way campaign, was launched recently through the radio, newspaper ads, and posters.

"For every five-dollar donation to United Way, the donor can receive a recipe from our personal col-lection," said Charlie Ross, fundraising co-chair for this year's United Way campaign. Charlie and his wife and co-chair, Cherie Ross, have accumulated an extensive collection of more than 600 recipes from around the world, and they have more than 400 cookbook recipes. They said some recipes from friends and family members go back many generations.

Cherie assisted with the preparation of several cookbooks for military wives' clubs, schools, and church groups. One church cookbook was submitted to author Joyce White, who included recipes and background information from the cookbook in her own cookbook compilation titled Soul Food.

"Choose a category of food for which you would like a recipe," said Cherie. "You may choose a category such as a main dish, side dish, appetizers, ethnic food, party foods, or bever-

A Vocal Minority?...

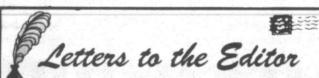

Despite the fact that the Maryland Public Service Commission approved the installation of two windenergy farms in Garrett County over three years ago, and are considering a third, there are still no giant wind turbines in the county, thanks to the efforts of various groups and individuals who are staunchly opposed to their presence here. However, with a change in state administration via the 2006 elections, the struggle for those in opposition to the turbines may well intensify

For among the members of Governor-elect Martin O'Malley's transition team is Wayne Rogers, chairman of Annapolis-based Synergics Inc., who has suggested to O'Malley the need for creating a cabinet-level energy secretary in order to streamline the approval process for renewable energy projects, and to make it more difficult for those in opposition to derail such projects. Mr. Rogers is obviously someone O'Malley trusts, which is worrisome for those of us who really don't want wind turbines in Garrett

Rogers described the opposition as "a vocal minority of anti-wind extremists" who "game the system," and Kevin Rackstraw, who represents Clipper Windpower Inc., referred to them as a small number of people who "make mischief."

It is true that it has been a relatively small number of people who have been vocal and active in opposing wind turbines for Garrett County. However, we wonder what would happen if the issue were put to a vote of county residents. It is certainly not unusual for the majority to share the same opinion as a vocal minority. Complacency, a lack of time, fear of failure, and shyness, among other reasons, are why many people do not get involved in issues as much as they should. But the majority is generally willing to go cast a private yea or nay vote on such important matters.

Once again, renewable energy resources should be pursued with fervor, particularly with the growing cost of fossil fuels, both in terms of dollars and damage to the environment. But gigantic wind turbines should be relegated to remote mountaintops elsewhere, and not placed in a tourist-destination point like Garrett County. It is just not worth the risk to our property values, scenic views, wildlife, and who knows what else.

To the Editor:

Since the recent election, we have new officials. We cannot continue to allow them to ignore the Oakland bypass issue. Delegate-elect Wendell Beitzel and Senator-elect George Edwards both acknowledged in the Cumberland Times "the importance of public input for planning the Oakland U.S. Route 219 bypass." Mr. Edwards even stated, "More than simply an Oakland bypass could be in the works with increased pressure at the state level to seek and to connect areas in the county itself."

In ongoing meetings with the SHA, state officials have continued to emphasize that the decision lies with our focal officials, not at the state level, as we have been led to believe. Garrett Countians for Smart Growth urges you to contact your local officials to let them know that you condemn a 42-million-dollar highway, with a roundabout, within 1/2 mile of four local schools. We also urge you to look at the bigger picture: If we allow this atrocity to occur, we will not decrease local truck traffic, but will in fact invite large tractor-trailers to use 219 to go directly through Deep

Thank you, Debby Ward Mtn. Lake Park To the Editor:

I wish I could understand why so few churches in America display a Nativity outside during the Christmas season. Is the faith that Jesus inspired that once faced lions with songs and prayer now so weak that it cowers before the criticism of anti-Christs? Or have we lost sight of the transforming power of Jesus' teachings? Many people have grown up in the church and, unless they fall away and return, do not experience the stark differences in their sure at the state level to seek newer north-to-south routes taught brings. We tend to take the personal and social building blocks of honesty, forgiveness, long suffering, self-discipline, and community contribution for granted. We have lost the awe and excitement of seeing how these principles create civilized society. A snowman didn't teach them caught in materiality. Jesus' resurrection was such an event. The shock of his return after death impressed those who saw and heard about it with the reality, omnipotence, and omniscience of the world's Creator. No more could evil be hidden. God was everywhere; it was obvious. Doubts about the reality of life after death were dispersed and many began to live in preparation for spiritual rebirth

The virgin birth was also a supernatural event, saying to those who heard of it to watch that child. Churches should advertise that birth to the world and tell all who pass by to watch that child, because God is with him and he grows up to speak as God tells him, follow where God leads him, and be an example to the rest of us of what it takes to please our Creator and return to atonement with God.

RAM OF THE MONTH NAMED FOR JANUARY - The Perkins Random Acts of Maturity Student for the Month of January at Southern Garrett High School is Cody Brack. Brack was nominated by Rose Riley, guidance secretary, for his conscientious effort to assist with graduation. "His willingness to go above and beyond what normal students his age would do when pressed to make an instant decision helped one graduating senior have a great graduation. Cody is yet another example of Southern Garrett High School students who make mature decisions each day," said Principal Tom Woods. Pictured above are Riley, Brack, and Woods.

STUDENT HONORED AT SHS - The Perkins Random Acts of Maturity Student for the Month of December at Southern Garrett High School is Ashley Roush. Ashley was nominated by Erin White, theater teacher, for her maturity with regard to personal health issues. "Ashley has made several lifelong commitments to a healthy lifestyle that most teenagers would find unacceptable. Congratulations to Ashley on having the maturity to make a choice that reaches far beyond the present," said Principal Tom Woods. Pictured above, from the left, are White, Roush, and Woods.

JANUARY 2007 SUN - As January opens, the sun is in the star group Sagittarius where it stays through January 19th. (Sagittarius was a Centaur, a creature with the upper body of a man and lower body of a horse.) On January 20, the sun enters Capricornus where it stays until February 15. (Capricornus was a creature with the upper body of a goat and the lower body of fish. This was a disguise by a goddess to hide from a monster but she only had time to change half her body into a fish.) The amount of sunlight in January slowly grows; there is 9.6 hours on January 1 versus 10.2 hours on January 31 (for Oakland). Sunrise in Oakland on January 1 is 7:38 a.m.; sunrise on January 31 is 7:21 a.m. Sunset times advance from 5:05 p.m. at the start of the month to about 5:37 p.m. as the month ends. During January the sun's peak height at midday changes from 27 degrees to 36 degrees. In the morning, stars begin to fade away around 6:30 a.m. while the evening stars first appear at 6:15 p.m.

JANUARY 2007 MOON - As January opens, the evening moon is about three quarters full in the evening sky. The moon is full on the evening of January 3, then shining in Gemini. This full moon rises at sunset, hanging in the sky for 15 hours. Full moons near the start of winter have the highest sky paths as if to make up for the sun's meager light in these months. On January 5 and 6, the moon appears near the bright planet Saturn in the mid evening (9-10 p.m.) sky. After January 9, the moon rises after midnight and is most conveniently viewed in the dawn sky then. The crescent moon appears near the star Antares and the bright planet Jupiter on January 15. In the late January, the moon is in the evening sky. You may be able to see a very slender crescent moon very low in the west southwest near the brilliant planet Venus on January 20 around 6 p.m. On January 25, the evening moon appears half full, then at its best for spotting the craters with binoculars. As January ends, the moon is nearly full, near the stars Pollux and Castor of Gemini.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS IN JANUARY 2007 - Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steadily, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The planet Saturn can be seen in the mid-evening eastern sky this month, shining near the sickle of Leo. In January, the planet Venus improves in visibility as her setting time increases from about 6:15 to 7:25 p.m. Look low in the southwest as it begins to get dark for a striking point of light. In late January, the planet Mercury may be seen below and to the right of Venus. In the morning dawn, three planets are on view: very bright Jupiter in the southeast, dull Mars below and to the left of Jupiter and bright Saturn in the west.

THE EVENING STARS IN JANUARY - In this month, the bright winter stars form an oval in the southeast. In mid-evening, look for a brilliant sparkling star low in the southeast; this is Sirius, the night's brightest star. Then going left and up, you'll come to Procyon, the Little Dog Star. Then upwards takes you to Pollux of Gemini. Near the top of the sky and oval is golden Capella. Going right and down brings you to Aldebaran, the eye of Taurus. Further below is Rigel, Orion's brightest star. Lastly, go down and left and you'll be back to Sirius. Cassiopeia is now high in the north, resembling a stretched out letter "M". The Big Dipper's scoop can be seen low in the north northeast. The scoop's top two stars point left and up to the North Star, a modest star about half way up in the

Small Kindness

We all have had someone tell us how much some seemingly small remark or favor that we did meant to them. And although there is no way to know in advance what the results of our actions will be, we can be assured that they will have some effect. Like stones thrown into a pond, our actions have ripples that spread far beyond their initial splash. Sometimes a kind word takes root in someone's heart, and turns their whole day, or perhaps, even their life around. The real value of the small kindnesses which we do for others is that these gestures tell them that they matter to us. Sometimes just looking up from our work to smile at someone is a way of validating them, as opposed to the harmfully invalidating effect of ignoring them. Most of these things cost us nothing. A pat on the back to a hard working colleague, a smile that says "Nice to see you," or a genuine compliment literally cost us nothing, though they pay huge rewards, both to us and to their recipients. Most of us dream of doing great deeds of charity while neglecting the many opportunities we have every day for doing small acts of kindness. To paraphrase Mother Teresa, we cannot do great things, but only small things with great love.

They are to do good, to be rich in good deeds, liberal and generous, thus laying up for themselves a good foundation for the future, so that they may take hold of the life which is life

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• One out of every seven people in North America have a permanent tattoo somewhere on their bodies. Think of seven of your closest friends; if you can't see any tattoos, statistically speaking, one of them probably has a tattoo where the sun don't shine.

 Here's a bit of a creepy factoid for you: Theodore Bundy, Albert De Salvo, Charles Manson, Jeffrey Dahmer and Jack the Ripper all have 13 letters in their names.

• The Hawaiian word "Honolulu" means "sheltered harbor."

• It was noted humorist and student of human nature Bill Vaughan who made the following sage observation: "If there is anything the nonconformist hates worse than a conformist, it's another nonconformist who doesn't conform to the prevailing standard of nonconformity."

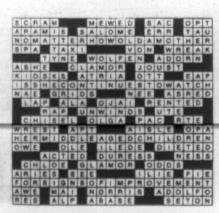

• At one time, it was against the law in Texas to take more than three sips at a time while standing up.

 It's a well-known fact that felines have a strong attraction to catnip.
 Next time you get some for Fluffy, though, consider this: Catnip supposedly prevents flatulence and morning sickness and speeds up hair growth in humans.

 Nutritionists say that Brussels sprouts have three times as much vitamin C as oranges. I don't know about you, but I'd rather eat three oranges than one Brussels sprout.

• Only 3 percent of the water in the entire world is fresh rather than salt-water. Proportionally speaking, if you compared the world's water supply to a single gallon, freshwater makes up only four ounces of the total. If you further narrow it down and consider only easily accessible freshwater, it's only two drops out of that gallon.

• On Jan. 7, 1785, Frenchman Jean-Pierre Blanchard and American John Jeffries travel from England to France in a gas balloon, becoming the first to cross the English Channel by air. The two nearly crashed into the Channel, as their balloon was weighed down by supplies, forcing them to throw nearly everything out of the balloon. Blanchard even threw his trousers over the side in a desperate, but apparently successful, attempt to lighten the ship.

 On Jan. 2, 1811, Senator Timothy Pickering, a Federalist from Massachusetts, becomes the first senator to be censured by the Senate. Pickering was accused of revealing to the public secret foreign-policy documents sent by the president to Congress.

 On Jan. 5, 1914, the Ford Motor Company rolls out a series of initiatives targeted at improving the lives of its workers. Along with boosting the company's minimum wage to $5 per day, Ford also unveiled plans to trim its work day to eight hours.

• On Jan. 4, 1936, Bob Hope debuts on network radio in the cast of "The Intimate Revue." Hope, born Leslie Townes Hope in London, made his film debut three years later in "The Big Broadcast of 1938," singing "Thanks for the Memory."

• On Jan. 1, 1953, country singer Hank Williams, 29, dies of a heart attack in the back of a limousine on the way to a show in Canton, Ohio. Media speculated that his death may have resulted from drug and alcohol abuse. His hits included "Your Cheatin' Heart" and "I'm So Lonesome I Could

• On Jan. 3, 1969, some 30,000 copies of the John Lennon-Yoko Ono album Two Virgins are confiscated by police at Newark Airport in New Jersey. The album's cover featured a nude picture of Lennon and Ono, which was deemed pornographic.

Retail Stores Aren't Dumping Grounds

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I am a new store owner and would like to address the issue of unwanted animals. Since my feed store opened, people keep dumping off their unwanted pets on our doorstep. Several times throughout the month I arrive at work to find a box of live animals on the front porch of the store. The boxes are often boldly labeled, "FREE."

I cannot begin to tell you how offended I am at the audacity of fellow community members who do this. To leave four kittens on someone's doorstep is to give them a huge responsibility — housing, feeding and caring for these little fellows takes time, energy and money. Most people find it difficult to care for one or two cats. Now we have eight, most of which were dumped here. The upkeep is incredible, and even though we clean the litter boxes daily, we still get complaints from cus-

To those who are considering abandoning their animals, please call one of the agencies in your area that have the resources and trained staff to help with your situation. Thank you — J.B. in Damascus, Ore.

DEAR J.B.: Thank YOU for sounding off about this irresponsible practice! Too often, unwanted pets are found wandering on country roads and city streets. But owners who think that dumping their pets on someone else's front porch is somehow less cruel should realize that it is not — and they are still doing their entire community a disservice.

J.B. not only has a business to keep solvent and employees to pay, but now has eight little mouths to feed. Guess where the money for that care comes from — the business!

Readers, if you are considering giving up a pet for any reason, please call your local shelter or animal welfare agency for help and advice. A solution can be found.

I have a 1958 Ballyhoo pinup calendar and have been offered $50 for it. It is in mint condition. — James, Portsmouth, Va.

TV Pipeline LaPaglia can 'Trace' Emmy win to 'Frasier'

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Is Anthony LaPaglia of "Without a Trace" the same actor who portrayed Simon Moon on "Frasier"? -Anita Stacy, Tecumseh, Okla.

A: Yes. He guest starred as Daphne Moon's (Jane Leeves) brother in nine episodes of the former NBC comedy series; he received Emmy nominations for three of those turns and won in 2002 for one of them. In 2004, he was nominated both for that role and his regular weekly turn as missing-person seeker Jack Malone on CBS' "Without a Trace.'

Q: Any chance the "Beauty and the Beast" series with Linda Hamilton and Ron Perlman will be released on DVD soon? -Rita-Lynn Pipito. Muncie. Ind.

A: For the numerous readers who have asked about this over many weeks and months. finally there is happy news. Paramount Home Video will release the first season of the show in a DVD set on Feb. 13. And given the following the drama has maintained ever since it was canceled by CBS, you can expect its other seasons to follow.

Q: Can you tell me why Peter MacNicol is leaving "NUMB3RS"? I feel he is very important to the show. -Sharon Burnett, St.

Charles, Mo. A: He's about to become important to another show, which is the reason for his departure from the CBS drama. MacNicol will be a regular cast member in the sixth season of Fox's Emmy-winning "24," which begins Jan. 14. He'll play a presidential adviser named Thomas Lennox, and as for whether he's good or evil - or both, given the track records of that series' characters - we'll have to wait and

Q: A long time ago, I enjoyed "My Favorite Martian" with Pamela Britton as the landlady. Now I find another Britton, Connie, on "Friday Night Lights." Could Pamela be Connie's mom? - Ric Webster, Villa Park, Ill.

A: No. Pamela Britton - who died in 1974, eight years after "Martian" ended its CBS run did have a daughter, but she isn't Connie.

O: Where do I find out if "Dharma & Greg" has been put in a DVD set? - Pat Erwin, Anaheim, Calif.

A: The first season of the Jenna Elfman-Thomas Gibson sitcom already has been released by Fox Home Entertainment. At this writing, there was no word on further sets being planned.

NFPA Warns Of CO Poisoning During Winter

Hundreds of people die from carbon monoxide tips to avoid the dangers of (CO) poisoning each year, carbon monoxide. and it remains a serious threat no matter the season, but activities that typically increase with the onset of winter weather conditions pose an even greater risk. have served as reminders that carbon monoxide poisoning can result in death when it reaches unsafe levels. The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) urges the public to be aware of the dangers of carbon monoxide and to take measures to ensure safe practices.

Many deaths caused by carbon monoxide poisoning could have been prevented by installing carbon monoxide alarms in the home to alert residents of its lethal levels before it is too late.

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas that enters the body undetected as a person breathes. The gas is produced by burning wood, coal, charcoal, natural gas, gasoline, propane, oil, methane, and other common fuels. It is also produced by automobiles and other gasoline or diesel engines.

When power outages occur, people naturally look for other ways to see and keep warm. As they look for alternatives for electricity and home heating, they should be aware that the risk of carbon monoxide poisoning is sometimes elevated with supplemental equipment that is often

"Portable generators are often used to meet electricity and heating needs in emergency situations, and homeowners are sometimes unaware of the risks associated with them, like electric shock, electrocution, and the most common risk, carbon monoxide poisoning," said Mark W. Earley, P.E., assistant vice president/ chief electrical engineer. "Risks associated with portable generators and many alternative sources for electricity and heat are minimized when owners are educated about the potential dangers and equipment is used properly."

Carbon monoxide poisoning can be confused with flu symptoms, food poisoning, and other illnesses. Some symptoms include shortness of breath, nausea, dizziness, light headedness, and headaches.

For more information on carbon monoxide poisoning, persons are encouraged to view Fact Sheets on NFPA's Web site at http:// www.nfpa.org under Research and Reports. NFPA suggests the following safety generator in the home.

Gasoline and other flammable liquids should be stored outside of living areas in properly-labeled safety containers. They should be stored away from any fuelburning appliance such as a gas hot water heater.

Plug appliances directly into the generator or use a heavy-duty outdoor-rated extension cord. Make sure the cord is free of cuts or tears and that the plug has all three prongs, especially a grounding pin. Do not try to power the house wiring by plugging the generator into a wall outlet.

If one must connect the generator to the house wiring to power appliances, have a qualified electrician install a properly rated transfer switch in accordance with the NEC and all applicable state and local electrical codes.

SCIENCE OPPORTUNITIES Students interested in applying to the Appalachian Regional Commission/Oak Ridge National Laboratory for the 2007 Summer Math-Science Technology Institute should see any science teacher for application information. The institute runs from July 7 to 20 in Oak Ridge, Tenn. Applications are encouraged from our county, so please consider the opportunity if you are 16 or older and interested in a science/research career.

Toshiba Exploravision Competition - Any students interested in competing in the Toshiba Exploravision Competition need to see Ms. Harman in Room 108. The competition involves combining imagination with tools of science to create and explore a vision of a future technology. Students may work in groups of two, three, or four along with a coach and an optional mentor. Each team selects a technology or an aspect of technology that is present in home, school, and/or community or any other technology relevant to their lives. They explore the technology and then project into the future as to what the technology could be like in 20 years. They then convey their vision with written description and five graphics simulating web pages. Winning criteria: must be planning to attend a 2- or 4-year college, university or trade/ technical school, must be used for educational expenses in the first year of full-time study, and a financial contribution by the applicant must be made toward his/ her own education. The award amount is $1,000, and the

Real Estate Facts by... Dale Carpenter

USING THE SAME TOOLS!

Although the "real estate bubble" has yet to bur st, a lot of markets are experiencing an "adjustment" of sorts, especially as interest rates slowly creep up and buyers are fewer and farther between. Regardless of market conditions any professional real estate agent will provide their seller with a Competitive Market Analysis (CMA) to properly gauge their asking price in these dynamic conditions.

But as a buyer, how can you be sure that the asking price is on the mark, or if your offer is a reasonable one? Some sellers simply ignore current market conditions, expecting to fetch the same prices as a year ago. So you need some assurance. Particularly, you need to know how many homes are on the market now vs. a year ago, and how the average sales times compare.

That's why as a buyer, you need someone representing you who will provide the same level of professional service that the seller receives. Working with a professional buyer's agent, you should expect to receive a current market analysis and other helpful facts to help you in your decision making process.

Once you've located a home you're excited about, a CMA report will compare it with similar properties, and give you a very good indication of whether the asking price truly reflects its value. Such a report cost's you nothing, yet gives you the peace of mind that your offer is a solid one, and you're not risking one penny more than you should!

If you'd like to buy or sell a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE. CELEBRATING

100 YEARS 24439 Garrett Ilwy.

Dermatitis is a common inflammatory condition of the skin. In general, the skin is swollen, red and itchy. Contact dermatitis and atopic dermatitis are two types. Contact dermatitis occurs in response to direct contact with irritants or allergens. Soaps and cleaning products are examples of irritants, while allergens include rubber, metals, perfumes, poison ivy, and neomycin, which is an ingredient found in topical antibiotic creams. Atopic dermatitis commonly occurs in persons with allergies. Prescription medications may be causes the skin irritation, and then avoiding it. Redness and itching can be alleviated by hydrocortisone cream. It may take up to two to four weeks for the irritation to go away.

Hydrocortisone cream may also be used to treat atopic dernnatitis. Antihistamines may be recommended if itching is severe. Immunomodulators have an effect on the immune system and may help to reduce atopic dermatitis flare ups. The FDA recommends that these medications be reserved for use

Christmas cards. I only have a handful of my original painted cards, so the rest of the people on my list will have to be satisfied with the commercial cards.

It is hard to believe that my classical movie channel showed three of my favorite movies today. Lassie, Come Home from my childhood days, and two of my favorperformers, Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, playing in the movie Bringing Up Baby. The other one was one of my favorite westerns, The Three Godfathers, which is about three hard men who found an orphan baby and struggled to take care of it. Lassie, Come Home reminds me of our collie dog who came up missing. I waited for him to come home for so long, but he didn't come home ever. The reason the father in the movie had to sell his son's dog was due to economic necessity. Thank God our family was not quite that poor because we had one valuable asset, which was my horse. Rich people offered me a lot of money for him. If we would ever have had to sell him to put food on the table, I am sure he would have jumped any fence to come home to me. He even swam a river to come home. Even if someone offered to buy him for a hundred times what Daddy paid for him, he would have never broken my heart by selling him.

My girls are very disappointed that it is unlikely we will have a white Christmas. On Saturday morning just two days before Christmas the sunshine looks almost like spring, and I don't mind it at all. There is a tiny possibility that we will get a little snow after Christmas. The only thing I loved more than Joey were my three beautiful babies. When I got them home from the hospital I took them down to the barn to show them to Joey. He knew what they were, and when I first put them on him, he was afraid to move, as he didn't want to take a chance on hurting them.

The last detail for our Christmas pageant was finally completed. We were short one Wise Man's gift, but I found a wonderful jug, and Cindy Richardson found an urn. We had more than we needed so the Wise Men can choose what they would rather carry.

Glory, Hallelujah! The longest night is past and now we can enjoy each day with a little more light and only three or four more months until spring. But I am afraid I am getting ahead of myself wishing for spring already. I still have a few last-minute tasks to do before Christmas, which are hanging up my latest Christmas cards, wrapping some stocking stuffers, and getting someone to wrap the big gift for the girls. I am not sure if I have enough gift wrap for three extra jumbo bath towels. If I am able to summon enough energy to go on one more shopping trip, I should do The girls are helping wrap our gift for "Gram" and the gift for the sibling name I drew. sure don't want to have to wrap gifts after Christmas Eve service as I used to do. These days gift wrapping is almost impossible for me, with only one hand. It is pretty difficult and sometimes impossible

Another difficult or impossible task is buying clothes for teenage girls, especially on a very limited budget. I hope to teach them the virtue of shopping at Goodwill, as they buy four pairs of jeans plus some nice tops for what they would have to pay for one pair at the mall. I know that 50 dollars will not go very far there.

I thought I had misplaced the three $50 bills I was to give them. I was sure I knew where I put them, but when I looked they through drawers and couldn't find the bank envelope, so I got Claire to help look too, with no luck. Finally, after searching for hours, there they were. Three times is a charm, so I don't have to go back to the bank, which is something I really couldn't afford to do. So I could go to bed with peace of mind. I believe I did pretty well for them with a limited budget. It will not be a great luxurious Christmas, but it will be good enough.

finally have let someone else do things that are almost too hard to do myself, and I am really grateful for Cindy Richardson, as she did the sewing of the missing costumes. I find that Claire is much better at wrapping presents. I must learn to let go of jobs I should do, but can't do anymore. It is a very hard thing

In spite of my limited budget, our floor under our tree is loaded with presents. I only hope my gifts are good enough to please everyone. I guess it is an inevitable change when our children grow up, and Christmas is not the same. I am Continued on Page C-5

HEAVY WATER by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen O. What is heavy water? What is it used for?

Water is composed of two hydrogen atoms and one oxygen atom. In nearly all cases, each hydrogen consists of one electron going around one proton. Oxygen has a nucleus that contains eight protons and eight neutrons, with eight electrons whirling around. The total weight of the combination H_2O is then 16 + 1 + 1 = 18 atomic mass units. That's normal water.

However, it is also possible to have a hydrogen nucleus containing one proton and one neutron, still with one electron in orbit around it. In nature, about one in 6,000 hydrogen nuclei contain that extra neutron. This is called an isotope of hydrogen, and given the name deuterium. It is sometimes written 2H, but more often given its own letter as a designation: D. The nucleus is called a deuteron. Chemically, it's still hydrogen, and it still forms water when combined with oxygen. But when deuterium forms water, making D2O, notice that the weight of the combined molecule is now 20 atomic mass units, not 18. So it's about 10% heavier than normal water.

Of course, oxygen has different isotopes too, either O-16 (ordinary), O-17 or O-18. So you could make "heavy" water using heavy isotopes of oxygen. But both of the heavier isotopes of oxygen are rare, and need not concern

For one hydrogen molecule out of 6,000 to be heavy does not cause any perceptible difference at all, and people just go right on drinking standard water all their lives without thinking about it. But the fact is that the unusual nucleus of deuterium will cause a water molecule to behave a little differently from normal.

Where it gets interesting is when laboratory equipment is used to sort out the heavy water molecules, and concentrate them, causing the fraction of heavy water to rise to 1%, 10%, or higher. It is possible to make 100% heavy water, but it is extremely difficult and expensive. Even concentrating water enough to give 1% heavy water is tricky, and it's only done for special purposes. Those purposes are usually related to nuclear physics.

Inside a nuclear reactor, a tremendous number of energetic neutrons are flying around all the time. To cause fission reactions, you want to have those neutrons slow down. High speed neutrons, going through ordinary water, occasionally run into a proton and might be absorbed - not what you want. But if a neutron runs into a deuterium nucleus, the itinerant neutron bounces off that heavier nucleus (twice as heavy) and loses energy. This happens over and over again. To make a long story short, heavy water thus serves as a moderator for the reactor, a way of producing slow neutrons. A type of reactor developed by Canadian researchers has used heavy water this way for years.

Deuterium also has some other exceptional properties that make it very easy to distinguish from ordinary hydrogen. As a result, it is often used in medical tests as an isotopic tracer. It goes through the human body in water just as if it were hydrogen, but shows up differently on instruments like nuclear magnetic resonance, infrared spectrometry, and mass spectrometry. It is not radioactive, so it poses no threat to health; it just serves as a marker to show how fluids are moving around. Since deuterium was not discovered until 1931, these medical applications only came along in the latter half of the twentieth century.

All that lot of ground and the improvements thereon situate in Garrett County, State of Maryland, and described as fol-

BEING all that property described in a Deed of Trust dated December 12, 2005, and recorded among the Land Records Garrett County in Liber No. 1182, folio 53.

The improvements thereon being known as No. 42 Virginia The improvements thereon consist of a dwelling.

The property will be sold in "As Is" condition, subject to any existing building violations, etc. and also subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting same, if any. Neither the trustees nor their respective agents, successors or assigns make any representation or warranties, either expressed or implied with respect to the property including without limitation, description, use, recorded or unrecorded leases or other occupancy agreements, if any, operating and management agreements, physical conditions or to the environmental conditions of the subject property. The Substituted

Trustees shall be required to convey insurable title. A Statement of Mortgage Debt has been filed in the foreclosure case in the approximate amount of $92,000.00. TERMS OF THE SALE: Cash or certified check deposit in the amount of $14,000.00 will be required of the purchaser (other than the above-named Holder) at the time and place of sale, balance in cash, immediately within twenty (20) days of the final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, time being of the essence, and to bear interest at the rate of 10.06% per annum from date of sale to date of settlement. In the event the above-named Holder purchases the property at the sale as the high bidder thereat, no deposit will be required and the requirement of interest on the balance of the purchase price shall be waived. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of the interest. If the purchaser defaults, in addition to all other remedies including but not limited to attorney fees, the Substi tuted Trustees may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the property at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulting purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of both sales, attorney fees and all other charges due and incidental and consequential damages. Taxes, water rent and ground rent, if any, to be adjusted to date of sale.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given this 19th day of December 2006, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County that the sale made by Thomas P. Dore, Mark S. Devan, Jennifer Matthews Herring, J. Patrick Gill and Kristen K. Haskins, Substituted Trustees, to U.S. Bank N.A., as trustee for the Structured Asset Investment Loan Trust, 2006-4, and reported in the above entitled cause, of the property being known as 17943 National Pike. Frostburg, Maryland 21532, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 18th day of January 2007 next; provided a copy of this Notice be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County once a week for three successive weeks before the said 12th day of January 2007.

The report states the amount of the sale to be $200,000.00.

Bierman, Geesing & Ward, LLC 4520 East West Highway, Suite 200 Bethesda, MD 20814 301-961-6555 SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEES' SALE OF IMPROVED REAL PROPERTY 23 Deer Crossing La.

McHenry, MD 21541 Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust dated October 31, 2001, and recorded in Liber 865, Folio 782 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, with an original principal balance of $91,000.00 default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Courthouse Door, Oakland, on

January 3, 2007 at 2:00 p.m. ALL THAT fee-simple LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust. The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $9,000 in the form of cash or readily available funds acceptable to the Trustees required at the time of sale. Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All other public charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, condo/HOA dues, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incident to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. All transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be paid by the Purchaser. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property, and assumes risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale. If ratification or settlement is delayed for any reason there shall be no abatement of interest. The sale is subject to post-sale audit of the status of the loan with the loan servicer including, but not limited to, determination of whether the borrower enfered into any repayment agreement, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to the sale. In any such event, this sale shall be null and void, and the Purchaser's sole remedy, in law or equity, shall be the return of the deposit without interest. If Purchaser fails to settle within ten days of ratification, he agrees to pay attorneys' fees in the amount of $750.00, plus costs, if the Trustees have moved to resell the property. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with such a motion on himself and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by said bidder at the time of the sale. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if the sale is not ratified by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser agrees to pay $295.00 at settlement to the Seller's attorney for review of the settlement

RFL NEW YEAR'S BASH SCHEDULED - The local Relay For Life Planning Committee will hold a New Year's Bash on Tuesday, Jan. 9, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Room 205 in the Continuing Education building of Garrett College. The snow date is Jan. 16. The bash is the kick-off for the ninth annual Relay For Life of Garrett County. "After eight years of hard work, Garrett County will reach $1 million raised to date in 2007!" said an event spokesperson. "Be a part of this exciting accomplishment and find out what 'Relay Fever' is all about!" Committee chair Donna Broadwater and co-chair Linda Murr will discuss the following topics: reasons to get involved in Relay, reasons to walk, team captain information, honoring survivors and those who have died, and cancer facts and tips. Information will also be available on local cancer programs. Refreshments will be provided. For additional information, persons may call Broadwater at 301-387-9868 or 301-334-6307, or Murr at 301-387-8027. Pictured is Dave Martin singing the national anthem during opening ceremonies of the 2006 Relay For Life. On the platform with him are Debi King and Debbie Workman, 2006 RFL co-chairs.

Program Set At Yough Lake

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is currently sponsoring a Christmas Tree Recycling Program at Youghiogheny River Lake in Confluence, Pa. All trees donated will be used for the fish habitat improvement program at Youghiogheny River Lake.

"Recycling used trees saves landfill space, helps to protect the environment, and improves fish habitats," a spokesperson said.

Community residents can donate their used livecut trees for this cause by bringing them to the Jockey Hollow Launch Area gate (one mile west of where Route 40 crosses the lake), the outflow campground parking area (closest to the outflow shower house), or the Mill Run boat launch. The areas designated for tree drop-off will be marked with signs. Trees will be accepted through Jan. 21.

To be suitable for fish habitat projects, trees should be as free of decorations as

Tree Recycling possible. Persons should remove all tinsel, ornaments, lights, garland, stands, and plastic bags from the tree. Artificial or flocked frees be accepted because they pose a hazard to wildlife.

For more information or to volunteer to assist with the Christmas Tree Recycling Program, persons may
